Nazis Make House-to-House Search in Lyon for Youths

Allied Planes Drop Arms to French Patriot Forces

BERNE, March 15.—(AP)—German troops started a house-to-house search in Lyon today for French youths resisting labor conscription as the internal situation of France grew more serious hourly, the Tribune De Geneve said. An Axis ultimatum to several thousand heavily armed young Frenchmen in mountain hideouts along the southern shore of Lake Geneva was reported by the newspaper to have expired at noon, but no further definite advices were received.

LONDON, March 10.—Allied planes were reported today to be dropping arms and munitions to French patriot armies hiding in the French Alps and a full-scale battle appeared likely after a Nazi ultimatum for their surrender expires tonight.

Martial law already has been declared at Thonon on the southern shore of Lake Geneva as result of preliminary clashes between patriot bands on one side and Vichy mobile police units and German Gestapo agents on the other, Swiss reports said.

The Germans were said to have used tear gas and hand grenades in several skirmishes.

DEMAND TROOPS GIVE UP

The German-Vichy ultimatum which expires at 7 p.m. (2 p.m. M. D.T.) calls for the surrender of Gen. Cartier, commander of the patriot armies, and officers of the crack French 27th Alpine Regiment who joined him, as well as the men serving under them.

Reinforcements of French police guards were reported pouring into

Allies Watch New Massing Of Jap Ships

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, March 15. — Allied planes kept a watchdog eye today on a growing concentration of Japanese transports and cargo ships in the centre of the island Arc northwest of Australia, ready to blast any invasion thrust.

Off Wewak, on the northeast New Guinea coast, Liberators and Flying Fortresses hunted the remnants of a shattered eight-ship convoy first intercepted on Saturday night. Only four remained because a destroyer and three cargo vessels had been severely damaged and probably destroyed.

COVER WIDE AREA

A headquarters communique said the newest invasion potential stretched over the 450-mile area from Ambon harbor, on Amboina in the Dutch East Indies, to Dobo, mapor port of the Aroe islands.

"Enemy ground forces there are being reinforced and new airfields are being constructed," a headquarters communique said today.

The Ambon-Dobo area forms the centre of the Japanese crescent around northern Australia. Up until now this region has been comparatively quiet, with most of the Japanese activity centring around the flanks here, in the Dutch East Indies to Rabaul, on New Britain island.

Dobo has been previously reported "virtually wiped out" in Allied bombing raids, but apparently the Japanese are making hurried efforts to reconstruct it.

Nazis Claim 14 Ships Are Sunk

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP)—A special communique broadcast today by the Berlin radio and recorded by the Associated Press claimed that U-boats had destroyed 14 vessels totalling 92,000 tons in various parts of the Atlantic.

This claim was without confirmation from Allied authorities.

The Nazi communique said seven of the ships, totalling 49,000 tons, were sunk from an Allied convoy "off the South American east coast" and another one was damaged, but the convoy's defence fire was so heavy that it could not be ascertained that the torpedo hit on the eighth vessel was fatal.

Veteran Many Raids on Nazis Dies in Action

Veteran of many powerful attacks against Nazi European strongholds, and son of a well-known Alberta barrister, Wing Commander Sedley Blanchard, D.F.C., has been killed while leading an R.C.A.F. bomber group in a recent heavy raid on Cologne. He was 31 years old.

Wife of Wing Commander Blanchard is a well-known Edmonton woman, the former Miss Elizabeth "Bunty" Douglas, who lives with her small daughter, Sally Ann, 2½ years old, in the Connaught Apartments here. Mrs. Blanchard is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Douglas of 10012 113 street, and a granddaughter of the late Howard Douglas, for many years superintendent of Banff National Park. She is widely known as a fancy skater, being a member of the "Glenora Six" and also played tennis at the Glenora club.

The father of the airman is C. S. Blanchard, K.C., agent for the attorney general at Calgary.

Wing Commander and Mrs. Blanchard were married in September, 1939.

Empress of Canada Is Claimed Sunk

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP)—The Italian high command claimed in a communique broadcast from Rome and recorded by The Associated Press today that the liner Empress of Canada, "laden with troops," had been sunk in the Atlantic by an Italian submarine.

There was no confirmation of this report in Allied quarters.

The Empress of Canada, a twin-screw vessel of 21,517 tons, is a part of the Canadian Pacific steamship fleet. She was built at Glasgow in 1922. In December, 1939, the liner was included in the list of British merchantmen which Germany classed as men-of-war. She was reported to have been converted to war duty in April, 1940.

The high command asserted she was sent to the bottom by a submarine commanded by Lieut. Vasseau Gainfranco Gazzana of Milan

U.S. Bombers Hit Harbor of Naples

Malta-Based Planes Destroy Axis Ship

VALETTA, March 15. — (CP) — Malta-based fighter-bombers blew up a ship from an Axis convoy west of Sicily Saturday night and damaged another. A third vessel was damaged by an R.A.F. bomber. A schooner was attacked with cannon fire in Tunisian waters.

Newsmen Back From War Theatres Say Victory Sure but Far From Near

NEW YORK, March 15.—If you travel some 11,000 miles southwest of San Francisco and have a first hand look at the combat points along the 5,000-mile battleline of the Pacific as you realize quickly what the Australian and American leaders mean when they say time runs in favor of Japan.

The men who have tried conclusions with the Japs at every opportunity during the last year —Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Admiral Chester R. Nimitz, Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., and Lieut. Gen. Delos Emmons — are believed unanimous in the heartening conclusion that the Japanese can be defeated in a relatively short time after the men, ships, planes and equipment now required in Africa and Europe can be diverted to the Pacific.

The composite opinion of these men seems to be that the war can be ended by the invasion of Japan in the winter of 1945 provided the European Axis powers are conquered next year, which competent

Railway Men Demand Repeal Of Labor Ban

Asserting that the recent order made by the National Selective Service prohibiting the employment of Canadians by United States contractors on northern war projects "strikes at the very roots of our democratic freedom," members of the Brotherwood of Railway Trainmen, Lodge No. 861, at a meeting held Sunday in the Masonic Temple, unanimously demanded immediate repeal of this order.

Members of the Brotherhood of Firemen and Engine Men, and of the Brotherhood of Railway Engineers, Lodge 796, also endorsed the resolution urging the repeal of the order.

Copies of the resolution will be forwarded to Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Hon. Humphrey Mitchell, minister of labor, Hon. James A. MacKinnon, minister of trade and commerce, and member of parliament for Edmonton West, and Mrs. Cora T. Casselman, member for Edmonton East.

Delegates of the organizations attending the meeting stated that the order had been passed at the instigation of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, and that "it strikes at the very root of our democratic freedom."

Text of the resolution reads: "Resolved that this organization, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, Lodge 86... go on record as vigorously protesting against a recent Canadian government order preventing the employment of further Canadians by American contractors on northern projects."

Giraud Assistant Resigns Position

ALGIERS, March 15.—(AP)—Reliable sources said Gen. Jean Marie Bergeret, a member of Gen. Henri Giraud's war committee who has been heavily criticized as pro-Vichy handed in his resignation today and it was accepted.

Bergeret, who had been Giraud's assistant commander-in-chief, is regarded by some as one of the hazards in negotiations for unity of French North African forces and the Fighting French of Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

He formerly served as chief of Vichy's air forces.

The developments came on the heels of a speech yesterday by the high commissioner in which he declared he planned to clean out the last vestiges of Vichy in North Africa, "both measures and men."

Following is an authoritative size-up of the Allied position and prospects for victory in the two major theatres of the war by two British United Press executives who met in New York this week after assignments in Europe and the southwest Pacific.

December and visited all the important Allied bases from Hawaii to Australia. He was under fire in New Guinea where he covered the battle in which Australian and American forces destroyed a Japanese concentration at Buna in Papua.

Joe Alex Morris, foreign editor, spent to London last September and was in charge of the European staff of B.U.P. while the United Nations were laying their plans for 1943 and making their first thrusts towards an invasion of the continent.

Both men talked with all the military leaders in their respective areas about Allied strategy and the outlook for this year. Thus, their observations and conclusions in the following parallel dispatches are based on the latest and most authoritative information that it is possible to obtain within the framework of the rules governing security.

Comparing notes in New York they found their material agreed in one important respect—that ultimate victory is certain but may be much further away than most people think.—EDITOR.

NEW YORK, March 15.—The United Nations will have their opportunity to break the back of the Axis in Europe before Christmas, but the ultimate defeat of Germany almost certainly will be a long, tough and costly task. The final victory cannot be expected until 1944 or later.

That is the broad impression you bring back from six months of close contact with men of all ranks and positions in Europe. There is no mistaking the acceleration speed as an essential of victory.

Details of how and when we are going to strike at the continent will be known only after operations are launched.

Time is now running in favor of the enemy's efforts to make the European fortress impregnable by exploiting the resources of the continent. Allied air has won an important success by delaying the occupation of Tunisia—a success that increases with each day of delay.

Giraud Offers de Gaulle Union on Mutual Pledge French Choose Own Govt.

By WES GALLAGHER

ALGIERS, March 15.—(AP)—Gen. Henri Giraud in an address internationally broadcast yesterday embraced the principles of the Atlantic Charter, and offered Gen. Charles de Gaulle a union on the basis of a mutual pledge that the French people would be allowed to choose their own government when they are again free.

Offers Union

Gen. Henri Giraud, who in an address yesterday embraced the principles of the Atlantic Charter and offered Gen. Charles de Gaulle a union on the basis of a mutual pledge that the French people be allowed to choose their own government when they are free again.

Giraud, civil and military commander in chief in French Africa, pledged himself to govern North Africa "according to the rules of the French republic," promised repeal of Vichy legislation and implied that office-holders of pro-Vichy leanings would be ousted.

Major points in Giraud's speech delivered at a protest meeting against German annexation of Alsace and Lorraine, were:

REPEAL VICHY LAWS

1—Repeal of all Vichy legislation, particularly the anti-Jewish decrees.

2—Repeal of all racial discrimination including "the Cremieux decree which in 1870 established a distinction between the native Moslem and Jewish inhabitants.

The delegation was headed by Alberta's minister of municipal affairs, Hon. L. Maynard.

"Duke" Schiller Killed in Crash

MONTREAL, March 15.—(CP)—Capt. Clarence Alvin "Duke" Schiller, who realized an ambition of his dead-reckoning mercy flight days when he flew the Atlantic in a Royal Air Force Ferry Command plane, was killed Sunday morning in a crash night landing at Bermuda.

Announcement of the crash was made here today by the R.A.F.F.C. who had few other details of the accident. They said that other members of his crew were killed and that possibly one man was injured.

Schiller, a senior R.A.F.F.C. captain, was best known for his 1928 rescue flight to the lonely Labrador Greenley Island on which a pioneer east-west plane "The Bremen" crashed with Capt. Hermann Koehl and Baron Gunther Von Huenfeld, Germans, and Maj. James Fitzmaurice, an Irishman.

WASHINGTON, March 15. — Secretary of State Cordell Hull, after an hour's talk with British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, said today that complete understanding among Allied governments is essential to every stage of the war and the post-war period.

Eden and Lord Halifax, the British ambassador, attended Hull's regular press conference.

Hull reported that the conversations with Eden had begun auspiciously and Eden told the newsmen he already had begun to feel better as a result of the initial talks.

CAN BE EXTENDED

Hull told correspondents that discussions of the nature he now is beginning with Eden could very well be extended to the Soviet Union, China, and others of the United Nations who might wish to engage in exchanges of views and opinions.

Hull, just returned from Florida, appeared in excellent health.

He said he was in entire agreement with Eden's statement of last Saturday that we must not reach a hasty conclusion about

Bombers Active On Mareth Line

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, March 15.—American-made bombers flown by British crews have attacked enemy positions inside the Mareth line and other Allied planes have scored an air victory off the Algerian coast, today's Allied communique reported.

These widely-separated air actions highlighted a day of comparative quiet along the whole Tunisian front. There was some patrol activity which amounted to "feeling out" operations by both sides.

Although the communique mentioned no big scale land fighting, the Algiers radio carried a hint that an important Allied drive might be getting under way in northern Tunisia. It reported that Allied troops, supported by artillery and tanks, have begun an attack in the Tamera area.

Demon Squadron Member Is Glad To Be at Home

Home on a furlough of 30 days after 17 months in The British Isles, serving as a pilot with the famed Demon Squadron of the R.C.A.F., Flight Lieutenant John Arnett, is back in Edmonton.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Arnett of 10924 123 street, Flt. Lt. Arnett is an Edmonton-born youth who attended Westmount school here. He was a graduate of the Olds School of Agriculture.

The 24-year-old pilot has seen a lot of stirring action since going overseas nearly two years ago. One of his greatest experiences was participation in the bombing of an enemy convoy off the Netherlands coast in May of 1942.

His plane was one of the coastal command aircraft that scored hits on seven of the 12 enemy ships.

GLAD TO BE BACK

Mrs. Arnett told The Bulletin that her son "is mighty glad to be back and doesn't look the least bit the worse" for his stirring life with the famed Demon Squadron.

A unique coincidence of the officer's trip home was his meeting with his brother, Pilot Officer Donald Arnett in Moncton. The two spent a day together in the New Brunswick city.

Chinese Army Pursues Routed Nippon Force

CHUNGKING, March 15—(AP) — The Chinese high command declared today that the Japanese offensive which began March 8 along a 100-mile stretch of the Yangtse river from the Japanese base at Yochow near the border of Hunan and Hupeh provinces had collapsed and that most of 20,000 enemy troops are under harassing retreat.

One body of Japanese troops has been surrounded, a communique said, while another column is being encircled. Chinese forces on the northern bank of the Yangtse were reported to have launched an extensive counter-attack.

The Chinese said the collapse of the Japanese offensive, which had been designed to protect the enemy's communications along the river, has greatly lessened the danger of another Japanese drive on Changsha, which has withstood three previous attacks.

HEAVY CASUALTIES

Observers said it was too early to predict whether the Japanese would be able to hold their key points on the south bank of the Yangtse. These points in Chinese possession would expose enemy river traffic to the danger of mines and artillery fire.

Fear that the Japanese were set to make a drive on Kunming, capital of Yunnan province, border on Burma, subsided in informed quarters after the Chinese announced that Japanese troops west of the Saiween river had been thrown back with about 1,500 casualties.

Gradual replacement of all Canadians, amounting to more than 1,000 now working for U.S. firms on northern war projects centreing in Edmonton by Americans, was announced Monday by Maj. Joseph F. Wildebush, chief of labor relations for the Northwest Division of U.S. Engineers, with headquarters at old Jesuit College here.

"We have decided to observe the spirit of the agreement between Canada and the U.S. concerning the employment of Canadians, following a directive from our headquarters at Washington, based on the report Washington received from Arthur MacNamara, director of national selective service for Canada.

"We have therefore issued instructions to all contractors to gradually replace Canadians with Americans. This will be done just as fast as replacements can be obtained from the U.S.," Maj. Wildebush said.

He said the situation had been one of great confusion.

"It has hit us with great abruptness," Major Wildebush said.

HIRED THROUGH SERVICE

"Actually we have hired all Canadians through the Unemployment Insurance Commission. We therefore can assume that all persons so hired were not required in vital Canadian war industries," he said.

Continuing, the Major said:

COULD USE NURSES

"We could use Canadian nurses and we are in need of Canadian bush pilots who know flying conditions in the north better than any other pilots we could hire. It is possible we could get some exemptions if we applied for them but I doubt if this will be done.

"Americans who come in to replace Canadians will not affect the housing situation here. Quarters are being constructed for all Americans. Even those now living at Canadian homes or hotels are being built to go to the quarters being built for them.

Name Changed

Gordon Graydon Is Elected President of Tory Group; New Constitution Adopted

By C. R. BLACKBURN

OTTAWA, March 15.—(CP)—Another stage in the transition of the old Conservative political party was reached here Saturday when the Dominion Conservative Association was replaced by "the Progressive Conservative Association of Canada," with a new constitution and a new president—Gordon Graydon, present leader of the opposition in the House of Commons.

The change was made pursuant to the draft constitution drawn up at the Conservative convention in Winnipeg last December, when John Bracken, former premier of Manitoba, was chosen national leader, and the name was changed to Progressive Conservative.

There was a spirited debate over the proposal of the committee on organization to restrict membership in the association to a "parliament" of about 100 to be selected by prescribed method and representative of all Canada.

MANY PROTEST

Many members protested strongly against this restriction, and R. H. McGregor, federal member for York East, declared that "this party cannot live if it is to be dominated by a clique."

Finally, it was agreed that the executive membership would be restricted as suggested in the report, but that there would be a general membership without voting privilege, open to those wishing to be known as Progressive Conservatives and willing to subscribe to the party's platform.

The meeting opened Friday evening when about 200 members registered, representing provincial associations except Alberta. Committees were then appointed, and they reported back in the general meeting Saturday afternoon.

Saturday morning, while the reports of the committees were in preparation, the general meeting heard speeches from Hon. R. B. Hanson, former house leader, W. Earl Rowe, federal member for Dufferin-Simcoe and Earl Lawson, former member of the Bennett government.

A highlight of these addresses was the reference by Mr. Rowe to rumors that the Canadians overseas had been unable to take part in the North African campaign because of lack of available reinforcements. He did not elaborate on the reference.

Mr. Bracken took no active part in the association's deliberations but was the speaker at a luncheon attended by about 240 of the members and their friends.

ABOLISH UNEMPLOYMENT

The leader pledged his party to the abolition of unemployment, which he said could be accomplished by giving enterprise a free hand and supplementing its efforts by state action if it should fail to provide employment opportunities for all.

Mr. Bracken also pledged his party's support to the government's war effort "insofar as an opposition can do so," while carrying out its traditional function as critic of the government.

Nothing was said in public at the meeting to indicate when an attempt will be made to relieve Mr. Graydon of his house leadership through the election of Mr. Bracken to the House of Commons.

The meeting agreed to leave the matter of publicity and public relations to the incoming executive, and the appointment of a Dominion organizer will be left until a later date. But the constitution instructed the executive membership to maintain a Dominion headquarters, and to have provincial headquarters established in every province.

MacNICOL HONORED

Final act of the meeting was the presentation of an engraved silver tray to John R. MacNicol, a memento of his long years of service to the Conservative party. Gordon Graydon succeeds Mr. MacNicol as president.

The slate of officers includes: Honorary president, Hon. John Bracken; honorary vice-presidents, John R. MacNicol and Maj. M. A. MacPherson, Regina; president, Gordon Graydon; vice-presidents, Mrs. Hugh MacKay, Saint John, Hon. Lucien Gendron, Quebec, Col. L. D. M. Baxter, Winnipeg, Christie MacDonald, Ottawa. These officers were instructed to name a secretary and a treasurer.

Provincial representatives on the executive include: Manitoba, Mrs. Arthur Roblin and Hon. Errick Willis, Winnipeg; Saskatchewan, Maj. H. F. Keown, K.C., provincial leader, and Mrs. J. H. Currie, Vonda; British Columbia, A. E. Jukes and Miss A. S. Dennis, Vancouver; Yukon, George Black, federal member for Yukon, and Mrs. Black.

The Alberta representatives will be appointed later.

There was immediate protest from the floor when, late Saturday afternoon, R. K. Finlayson, Winnipeg, chairman of the committee on organization, presented the draft constitution, which followed closely the essential details of the draft made at the Winnipeg convention.

communique said Russian losses at Kharkov were "yet to be surveyed," and that Soviet counter-attacks west of Belgorod had collapsed with heavy losses, including the destruction of 44 Red army tanks. Soviet attacks in the center and to the Staraya Russa area also were asserted to have been repulsed and 64 Russian planes were claimed downed in yesterday's fighting.)

The Russian mid-day communique announced that one Soviet unit withheld the onslaught of German tanks and repulsed incessant enemy attacks continuing day and night.

BATTLES IN NORTH

To the north of Kharkov heavy battles are in progress with Soviet artillery fighting off repeated attacks of large German tank and infantry forces and inflicted enormous losses on the enemy, dispatches said.

The Soviet drive west and south of Vyazma was reported progressing at full speed as the Red army captured several dozen more settlements.

The fall of Semlevo railway station, 14 miles west of Vyazma on the Vyazma-Smolensk line, was announced in the mid-day communique.

The mid-day communique also announced a fresh Soviet break through in the line of German fortifications south of Bely. No reports were published today on other sectors of the Soviet-German front.

Stamp Issues To Be Changed

OTTAWA, March 15. — (CP) — Important changes in Canadian postage stamp issues are being made to provide for increased rates which become effective April 1, postal officials said today.

They said it has been decided that air mail rates will be raised from six to seven cents. Until now it was not known whether air mail as well as regular mail would carry the extra one-cent tax imposed in Finance Minister Ilsley's budget.

Under an international agreement the unit stamp—now three cents in Canada and four cents when the one-cent additional tax is applied—must be red. To meet this requirement a new four-cent stamp in red is being prepared and is expected to be available about April 15.

Color for the three-cent stamp in the new issue, which will be in considerable demand for "drop" letters addressed within the city where they are mailed, has not yet been decided.

The 15-cent stamp, used for regular mail special delivery, will become 14 cents and changes will also be made in both the six-cent air mail, which will be made seven cents, and the 16-cent air mail special delivery which will be a 17-cent stamp.

Killed by Tram

WINNIPEG, March 15.—(CP)—Mrs. Hannah Stodgell of Winnipeg was fatally injured last night when struck by a Winnipeg Electric Company street car in downtown Winnipeg.

Kelso Roberts, Toronto, declared the association membership should be open to all who wished to join, and urged that western progressives be particularly invited to enter. He moved an amendment setting up the geographically distributed executive membership and providing for general membership, as proposed at Winnipeg.

James MacDonnell, Toronto, a member of the nominating committee, explained that the committee felt that an unrestricted membership would mean that at annual meetings the attendance would be preponderantly those living close to the meeting place, while those in the distant provinces would not be adequately represented.

The method prescribed for qualifying as members assured that the membership would not be self-perpetuating, but would be representative in the same degree that members of parliament are representative, said Mr. MacDonnell.

EXECUTIVES LEADERS

The executive members shall be the national leader, provincial leaders, dominion organization chairmen, one official representative from each province, presidents of all provincial or territorial organizations, the president and executive secretary of the Dominion Young Progressive Conservatives of Canada, the presidents of provincial women's associations, and representatives from each provincial or territorial organization on the following basis: Ontario and Quebec seven each, four each from all the other provinces, two each from the Yukon and the Northwest Territories, one from each division to be a woman.

same requirements. While this step pleases the Arabs, the Jews also benefitted greatly by repeal of all anti-Jewish legislation.

3—Restoration of democratic functions in North Africa, including election of municipal assemblies and consuls general as soon as possible.

OUST AXIS INFLUENCES

4—Elimination of all Axis influences whether "measures or men" from North African life. Giraud apparently meant by this statement the ousting of pro-Vichy office-holders, and Gen. Jean Marie Bergeret and Gen. Auguste Nogues, who have been heavily criticized for pro-Vichy leanings, were conspicuously absent from the meeting.

5—A pledge to the "people of France that the greatest will is to choose a provisional government themselves will be fully safeguarded."

It was understood that formal decrees carrying out these reforms are being drafted.

WILL CO-OPERATE

"For my part," said Giraud in his offer to co-operate with de Gaulle, leader of the Fighting French, "I am ready to co-operate with all those who, accepting the fundamental and traditional principles of which I have spoken, join in the solemn pledge which I am giving the French people who are taking part in the struggle against the enemy.

The offer was greatly similar to de Gaulle's offer in a speech last Friday.

The general declared his aims included driving the invaders from the French homeland and the restoration of the chamber of deputies, and he said elections for that chamber would be held as soon as France was freed by Allied forces, including the troops he commands.

SPEECH "LUKE WARM"

SAY FIGHTING FRENCH

LONDON, March 15.—(CP)—Gen. Henri Giraud's declaration of political principles in North Africa yesterday still failed to satisfy the Fighting French here.

A spokesman said that if Giraud "means what he implies," then his speech "brings Giraud closer to the view of Gen. Charles de Gaulle and the French national committee," but he added quickly that he and other Fighting French leaders were disappointed that Giraud had failed to pledge the elimination from his regime of Marcel Peyrouton, Pierre Jean Marie Bergeret, and "other well-known Vichy followers."

DOOR "HELD OPEN"

A British diplomatic observer said: "Giraud's speech appears to hold the door wide open to union with the Fighting French."

The Fighting French spokesman's reaction to the speech, however, was seen as only luke warm.

Giraud's declaration that he was a trustee of the law of the French Republic was termed by the spokesman as "vague, because we are uncertain if he means that the laws of the Republic are going to be applied through French North Africa."

"If he does," the spokesman said, "it means quite an advance since Casablanca."

LONDON, March 15. — Gen. Charles de Gaulle today hailed Gen. Henri Honore Giraud's new pronouncement of policy as marking "great progress toward the doctrine of the Fighting French" and said he was ready to discuss ways and means of effecting full unity of all French elements.

Responding to Giraud's speech involving the principles of the Third French Republic for North and West Africa, the Fighting French leader issued a statement expressing hope that the declarations would be "speedily translated into acts at Algiers, Casablanca and Dakar."

The declarations by the chieftains of the two French factions were believed to have brought measurably closer an understanding between them and full co-operation in the United Nations war effort.

APPROVED IN FRANCE

"We note with satisfaction that these declarations mark in many respects great progress toward the doctrine of the Fighting French as defined and upheld since June, 1940, and again expressed in a memorandum of the national committee on Feb. 23", de Gaulle said with regard to Giraud's broadcast Sunday.

"Countless testimonies which have reached us from France prove that the doctrine is passionately approved by an immense majority of the oppressed nation."

Referring to the time of the assassination of Admiral Jean Francois Darlan, former leading figure in the Vichy regime who had taken up a high position in the African bend, de Gaulle said:

"In any case, I repeat today as we have often affirmed since Dec. 25 last that we are ready to step on the spot between Frenchmen the conditions and ways and means of an effective union of the empire, so imperiously demanded by the interests of France at war."

Allied Planes Dropping Arms To Frenchmen

the Savoi area and schools and movie theatres in the towns of Evian Thonon, Annemasse, Annecy and Aixles Baines were requisitioned to house them.

Allied planes are flying over the Alps in daylight in bold defiance of German occupation authorities, parachuting cases of rifles, machine-guns and ammunition by parachute, a Zurich dispatch said.

German anti-aircraft batteries opened fire on several planes, but there were no reports of any being shot down.

Some 1,500 of the patriots were reported last week to be armed with machine guns, rifles and even 75-millimetre artillery, but the constant influx of recruits from as far away as Paris and Lyon made the new allotments of arms vital.

UPWARDS OF 50,000 MEN

The patriot armies were believed to number more than 50,000 men in the Haut-Savoie border district of eastern France alone with former French army officers in command.

The clashes in Haute-Saloie were part of a nation-wide revolt touched off by Vichy-Nazi efforts to round up 400,000 Frenchmen for deportation to Germany as slave labor.

The British radio said that Germany had set the deadline for the delivery of the last of the 400,000 Frenchmen for today, but a Fighting French spokesman reported that the Germans prefer to set several other deadlines and probably would again postpone the final day for the drive.

Resistance to the slave-labor order was heightened by reports filtering back to France that some conscriptees from Bordeaux were put into German uniforms and sent to Russia in construction battalions.

Railway Men Demand Repeal Of Labor Ban

paying the resolution was handed to The Edmonton Bulletin by C. T. Vance, local chairman of the brotherhood.

Resolved that this organization, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, Lodge 881, go on record as vigorously protesting against a recent Canadian government order prevening the employment of further Canadians by American contractors, on northern projects

This order was passed at the instigation of the Edmonton chamber of commerce The order strikes at the very roots of our democratic freedom

The Edmonton chamber of commerce has been crying that they cannot keep their employees Of course they can't For the first time since pre-depression days, the employees finally were getting the breaks. Labor was in demand, and the business men found that they couldn't keep their staffs unless they paid decent wages. So they worked this squeeze play, helped by the Edmonton Journal, to get the working man and working woman to take what the business men want to hand out.

The business men are shouting they can't raise wages. It is well known that they can. The wage ceiling is a cloak behind which the business men love to hide, but the same business men want the privilege of computing and supplying the contractors themselves with any and all material they may require at American prices, but they are denying the same right to any Canadian man, woman or child who works for a living.

TWO CASES

There are two cases which we wish to cite:

1. A young lady working for a large concern gave seven days' notice, and immediately the employer brought in a young lady and asked that this girl train her during the seven days before she was through. This was done. At the end of the seven days she was to go to work for an American concern at considerably more money. In the meantime, the vicious order was issued by the dominion government. She interviewed the Selective Service Board and was told she could not go to work for the Americans, and now finds herself without a job.

2. A young lady working as a waitress for an Edmonton concern for approximately two years, and had been receiving the sum of $9 a week and her meals, and working very hard. She has a grade nine school education, and found herself a job with the Americans as a clerk at $90 a month, and that is not an excessive wage. She desires to go home for two weeks' rest before taking the new job. Now the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce has decided that when she comes back she is to take the killing $9 a week job. Her employer, a member of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, has decided she can't have a job with a decent wage. This is not democracy. This is Fascism with the business men sitting in the dictators' seats.

This regimentation of labor cannot go on. Germany is picking up Frenchmen and telling them they must work in German factories. The democratic world is horrified. The Edmonton Chamber of Commerce tells men and women they cannot work for the Americans, but must continue to work for the same businessmen. What's the difference?

CAN'T KEEP SERVICES

The Edmonton businessmen complain that they cannot keep essential services going. Is it essential that a young lady be kept out of a job and not allowed to work for the Americans? Is it essential that another young lady be forced to work for $9 a week?

This organization is firmly of the opinion that the working man and the working woman, be heard.

This organization holds that it was manifestly unfair that labor was not represented at the hearings which preceded the order. It has been considered by some that labor's views were represented because Mr. Fred White met the Edmonton chamber of commerce. Mr. White at the hearings represented the Dominion government, and heard only the Edmonton chamber of commerce. As a representative of the Dominion government he could not be expected to represent labor. At no time was there a suggestion by Mr. White or the chamber of commerce that someone, speaking on behalf of the working man and working woman, be heard.

We demand that immediate action be taken to rescind this unwarranted, undemocratic order which makes chattels of every man and woman in this land of living.

Understanding Among Allies Greatest Need

the duration of the war. It will be deeper than we might think, Hull said.

Hull was asked what he thought was the most important thing that should be borne in mind in connection with the talks with Eden.

STRESSES IMPORTANCE

The secretary then mentioned the absolute necessity of maintaining complete understanding among the important governments on the prosecution of the war at its every stage and the necessity of success in seeking solutions of post-war problems.

Eden earlier in the day talked for an hour with Vice-President Henry A. Wallace.

A luncheon at the navy department with Secretary of Navy Frank Knox and high ranking naval officers was scheduled to follow the Hull conference. This afternoon Eden will confer with Sir Arthur Salter, head of the British shipping ministry here.

Eden said he expected to confer with Hull "one or two more" times. He also expects to see all members of the cabinet during the week.

OTHERS CALLED IN

State department officials were called to participate in the Eden conferences after the preliminaries.

They included James Dunn, advisor on political relations; Ray Atherton, chief of the European division, and Loy W. Henderson, Russian expert. Henderson recently returned from Moscow where he served as charge d'affaires during the recent visit of Ambassador William H. Standley to this country.

Simultaneously, four senators, encouraged by White House approval of their broad objectives, prepared to ask the senate to endorse their proposals for an immediate conference of United Nations representatives on a five-point program to win the war and set up an international police force to guard against future aggression.

MAY BE READY TUESDAY

Eden is not participating in the discussions of the plan for closer Allied co-operation which is being sponsored by the senate group, but the legislators' objectives are in line with what Eden and Hull are undertaking and the diplomats have been encouraged by this demonstration of support from the Capitol.

The senate resolution may be ready for introduction tomorrow. It probably will touch off the greatest congressional debate on international relations since the League of Nations battle.

The senate plan was presented to President Roosevelt yesterday by its four authors—Senators Lister Hill, D., Ala., Elbert D. Thomas, D., N.M., Harold H. Burton, R., O., and Joseph H. Ball, R., Minn. They were accompanied to the White House by Chairman Tom Connally, D., Tex., of the senate foreign relations committee and Sen. Robert F. Wagner, D., N. With Mr. Roosevelt were Economic Stabilization Director James F. Byrnes and Presidential Advisor Harry L. Hopkins.

ceived notification of her husband's death, which has been confirmed through German sources and the international Red Cross.

A private communication from the station commander where Wing Commander Blanchard served, said he had been killed while leading a group of bombers on the Cologne raid.

Wing Commander Blanchard was appointed commander of an R.C.A.F. bomber squadron in Nov., 1942.

The Alberta air officer had participated in the great air raids on Rostock, Cologne, Bremen, Hamburg and Emden. He was awarded the D.F.C. on August 4, 1942.

The officer, who lived for some years at Calgary, joined the permanent R.C.A.F. in 1935. He had previously served as an officer in the Lord Strathcona Horse.

ATTENDED R.M.C.

He was a graduate of St. John's boys' college, Winnipeg and from Royal Military College, Kingston.

Before going overseas he commanded an air force station at Sidney, Cape Breton, Island. For six months he ferried bombers across the Atlantic. Then he commanded a Catalina patrol squadron at Halifax. For six months he was liaison officer at Mitchell Field, Long Island. He went overseas in July, 1942.

Before the war he took part in an aerial search for Shell Coleman, another R.C.A.F. permanent force man lost in northland bush.

Japanese Are Thrown Back In S. China

CHUNGKING, March 15. — (AP)—Chinese troops west of the Salween river in the southwestern province of Yunnan have thrown back Japanese forces after causing them about 1,500 casualties, a Chinese communique said.

At least 1,000 Japanese dead were carried back to the Japanese base of Tengyueh, it was said.

At the same time Chinese artillery silenced Japanese batteries in an exchange across the Salween southeast of the Burma road town of Lungling.

As the result of the crippling of the northern Japanese column thrown across the Yunnan border from Myitkyina, Burma, apprehensions of a few weeks ago that the Japanese were about to make a serious drive on Kunming have subsided in well-informed quarters.

There was no change in the situation in the Hupeh-Honan border area, the other chief zone of activity, where Japanese are attempting to safeguard their Yangtze river communications and perhaps lay the foundation for a fourth offensive against Changsha.

Ultimate Defeat Of Germany Will Be Costly Task

land, sea and air attacks this year designed to keep the enemy on the defensive and permit us to strike where we choose and establish a bridgehead on the continent.

Hitler undoubtedly will attempt to regain the initiative in Russia or elsewhere this year, even if only for indecisive, short-lived attacks that would delay our invasion plans.

The mustering of Allied power, especially in the air, in the European and African theatres means that when Tunisia is cleared up we are going to strike at many points in both the Mediterranean and along the northern European coast. These thrusts will be designed to force the enemy to distribute his defensive strength in a thin line or leave avenues of approach virtually undefended.

Every point at which we strike in Europe potentially will be the point of a major invasion because we will be in a position quickly to develop any bridgehead we establish. Once we force the enemy to fight in two or more fronts we will be in a position to rally the guerilla strength of occupied countries and to attack other points closer to Berlin. Only then will we be able to take full advantage of the war on the eastern front.

KEEP AXIS GUESSING

The Allied purpose is to keep the Axis guessing as to where and when we will strike, and this has resulted in considerable speculation as to the best avenue for attack.

One plan discussed in London calls for an invasion by way of Greece. This would have the advantage of stretching enemy lines to the limit across Europe and, if successful, of opening the Dardanelles route for Allied convoys through the Black Sea to Russia. In effect, we would seek to make a junction with the Red army.

What we expect to do this year is coming into dim outline in words and deeds.

The British, Canadian and American air forces already have started the pre-invasion "softening up" of the Axis, but it would be foolhardy to assume that the present scale of aerial attack can achieve that goal. We have made only a beginning and the current scale of planes and bombs must be increased many times.

The appointment of Gen. Sir Harold Alexander and Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, under U.S. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, to drive the enemy out of Tunisia indicated another phase of our plans. Alexander is a handsome, soft-spoken administrator who knows modern warfare from Dunkirk to the Burma Road. Montgomery is a cold relentless strategist who was more than a match for roughhouse Rommel.

Seeing them together, you get the idea of organization, striking power and endurance. They are not in the Mediterranean merely to clean out Tunisia.

HEAVIER CASUALTIES

Our commanders expect much heavier casualties as we intensify our offensive operations to break the Goebbels myth of the impregnability of the European fortress.

Hitler certainly will attempt to seize the initiative at sea this spring, probably within a month, by launching an unprecedented U-boat offensive to cut off Allied men and materials from the front lines.

He has made clear that the estimated 250,000 Axis troops in Tunisia will fight to the bitter end and continue to receive supplies in an effort to hold the Mediterranean narrows to the last possible hour and thus prevent us from shifting to the north Atlantic two-thirds of the ships now supplying the mid-east and Russia by way of the Cape of Good Hope.

ELIMINATE RED ARMY

He may strike anew at Russia this summer because elimination of the Red army still is his greatest single hope of victory, but if that task seems too formidable he may attempt to set up a defence line in the east and then break through Spain to Gibraltar in a bid to rescue Rommel from the Tunisian trap.

He may attempt to disrupt advanced Allied invasion base by an air-borne "sabotage" attack on the British Isles in which several especially trained divisions would seek to destroy communications centres, air fields, bases and harbors. Such an attack might do incalculable damage before it was repelled.

If those counter blows prove futile, the Nazis can still attempt to hold us back from the European coast line and play for a prolonged war of exhaustion ending in a compromise which would be a victory for Hitler.

That is why the accent is on speed—speed on the home front, the air front and the battle front. That is why Hitler fights for time to muster resistance in Europe and why we must strike with our maximum power in Europe this year.

reporters believe to be the earliest practical date.

If the European war runs into a stalemate, the majority—but not the unanimous—opinion of top Allied military leaders in the Pacific is that it will take between five and 10 years to defeat Japan.

In that event time would run heavily in Japan's favor. The enemy would be able to sit back behind his outer perimeter of defences and digest the fabulously rich loot of Hong Kong, Malaya, Singapore, and particularly the Dutch East Indies. The Japanese navy, starved for oil before the war began, now is busily restoring captured wells of the Indies, getting the rubber and tin production functioning again and organizing a protected supply line into Tokyo for these priceless commodities.

WIN THE HARD WAY

If the United Nations allow that to happen, they will have to win the war the hard way. It will be particularly hard if a stalemate still exists in Europe and the United States is forced to continue fighting on several fronts. It would call for the maximum of civilian sacrifices, something that has not even been approached yet. A great increase in the production of war materials would be essential. And we would have to raise an army and navy which would call for the drafting of every available male up to the age of 45—single, married and fathers—except those engaged in direct war production.

The Allies have had victories such as Guadalcanal, Papua and the Bismack Sea. But if Nimitz's fleet happened to lose just one major engagement with the Japanese fleet, the whole picture in the Pacific might be changed radically. In a matter of a very few minutes.

Strategists then would have to contemplate the possibility of invasions of Australia, Hawaii, Washington, Oregon, California and the Panama Canal rather than proceeding with their present plans for the reduction of Tokyo.

The reason most of the Pacific military leaders believe the Allies are not winning the war there at present goes back again to the time factor. True, the Allies have been able to establish a physical line along the vast Pacific battlefront and have succeeded in halting enemy encroachments at least temporarily, but the experts believe that in effect by the fact that the Japanese, working behind the line, have won time to exploit the loot they captured in the early days of the war.

ONE IMPORTANT THING

But after talking with top officers and buck privates alike, you conclude that Allied forces have done one important thing. Since Pearl Harbor they have thoroughly debunked the idea that the Japanese is a superman. MacArthur and Nimitz and Halsey have measured the enemy and know beyond any question that they can lick them. What's more, their "dirt soldiers"—the boys who do the ground fighting at the front—and the fliers and sailors know it, too.

The picture of the Japanese has changed. No longer is he the invincible opponent who swept down upon Hong Kong and who slithered quietly through the jungle to capture Singapore. The new picture of the Japanese is that he is a tough, under-sized soldier of a low mental order who can always be made to give ground before a tougher, larger and more intelligent opponent.

The Japanese taught the Australians and Americans how to be tough in jungle warfare and now has cause to regret it. The legend of Japanese invincibility evaporated when Radio Tokyo complained that its troops had to relinquish Guadalcanal because the Allies were "better conditioned to jungle warfare."

Another Japanese complaint dealt with the larger number of Nipponese gold teeth in circulation among the Allied soldiers as a sort of jungle money. No one, Allied or Japanese, doubts any longer that a well-equipped Australian or American is more than a match, man for man, against the flower of the Nipponese army.

What will be the pattern of action once the planes, men and ships are available in the Pacific to start punching? You are told that it will include a gigantic aerial assault on Japan itself with the idea of knocking out Tokyo, Yokohama and the heart of the island kingdom. This attack will be based chiefly on the Chinese mainland. With that land-based aerial assault will come an attack by the three powerful divisions of the navy—surface, submarine and air. A simultaneous aerial attack from Alaska, by way of the Aleutians also may be anticipated. Then will come the invasion.

A route into China will have to be opened and maintained to supply the great fleet of bombers that will be needed. At present, Britain's Field Marshal Sir Archibald Wavell is testing the tenacity of the Japanese grip on the southern end of the Burma road. When he has found out what he wants to know, he will be heavily reinforced with men and supplies for his great drive to build the springboard in China that will catapult the Allies into Japan.

War News Summary

MONDAY, MARCH 15

Russia: The possession of Kharkov, possible jumping-off place for a third German summer offensive in a last desperate effort to crush Russia, was in doubt today as the Nazis claimed its recapture and Russian dispatches indicated the Red army was waging a battle against great odds to hold that bastion of the Ukraine.

The Russians said they were riding roughshod over German fortified systems on the central front, where they were 80 miles east of Smolensk, the key position in Hitler's position west of Moscow, as they advanced along the railroad from captured Vyazma.

To the northwest of Vyazma they apparently were within about 65 or 75 miles of Smolensk.

North Africa: The British 1st Army was reported to be advancing over hundreds of German dead found in the mountains of the Sedjenane area on the sea flank of the Allied line in northern Tunisia.

The British advance was of a limited nature, however, and succeeded in occupying only part of the height known as Djebel Ben Mareche.

The Allies apparently were far from the point of launching a general offensive, and dispatches from Allied headquarters in North Africa suggested that the Germans might have at least one more offensive up their sleeve. The dispatches said new German units had appeared in the northern sector.

Pacific Area: The Japanese are massing ships, men and planes in a new threat to Australia, this time at their bases to the northwest of the South Pacific continent, Gen. Douglas MacArthur warned today.

A New Delhi communique today said the Japanese in Burma stabbed at the left flank of the British positions near Ratheduang, 25 miles north of Akyab, and forced a readjustment of the British line.

Expert Explains Fighting:

Reds Probably Can Hold Kharkov If They Are Able to Take Orel

In the following dispatch a competent expert on Russian affairs explains the significance of the current fighting in the Donets basin.—EDITOR.

By WILLIAM MANDEL
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright, 1943, by British United Press

The present battle for Kharkov well may have a considerable influence on the immediate course of the war between Germany and Russia.

Kharkov and the Donets basin, or Donbass, 150 miles to the southeast, are the two great strategic bases on the southern end of the Russian front.

Eight railroads and a trunk highway radiate from Kharkov. Ten railroads radiate from the Donbass. The side that holds both of these bases controls the southern third of the entire front from Leningrad to the Sea of Azov, and can dictate military operations. When the bases are divided, with one in German and the other in Russian hands, the advantage is to the side that has the general strategic initiative in the war.

CONTROL THREATENED

The Red army has the initiative in the war on the European continent. This means that its control of Kharkov has always threatened the Germans in the Donbass with being cut off by a thrust 120 miles southwest to the Dnieper. It also meant that the Germans were deprived of any north-south transport line on which to base their defence east of Romodan, which is 120 miles west of Kharkov. That is why the Germans weakened their European coastal defences to throw many fresh divisions into the battle to recapture Kharkov where they now enjoy these advantages:

One: The presence in the Kharkov-Donetz river sector of 12 fresh divisions drawn from the west. Two: German control of Orel, 200 miles north of Kharkov.

Both the Moscow-Kharkov railroad and the great trunk highway linking these cities passes through Orel. So long as the Germans hold Orel, the Red army can get additional troops, with which to defend Kharkov, only by withdrawing them from the Kursk-Lgov front to the northwest, or by bringing them in from the east along a one-track railroad. At the present time, therefore, the Red army has had to weaken its drive to cut off Bryansk from the southwest, and pull troops from this area back to the Kharkov front.

OREL REPORTS TRUE

In this situation, Orel becomes the most important point on the entire front, except Kharkov itself. It is probable, therefore, that the German reports stating that the Red army is engaged in a very determined effort to take Orel, are true.

This, then, is the way the situation appears. If the Soviets can take Orel, they probably can hold Kharkov. If they lose Kharkov, and are unable to take Orel, they will probably be unable to hold Kursk and the area to the west, and will be forced back more than half of the way to Voronesh. It is a situation in which a dozen divisions either way may make all the difference in the world.

Social Security Report Expected

OTTAWA, March 15.—(CP)—The special committee on Social Security starts work Tuesday. It is expected to receive a report on a projected plan for a national system of social insurance from Pensions Minister Mackenzie under whose auspices government officials and other experts have been studying plans for the post-war period.

During the past week the special committee on reconstruction, directly concerned with plans for providing employment, training and rehabilitation of ex-servicemen, began its work.

Other important committees to start work soon are those on public accounts—which is expected to look into the work of Col. John Thompson, director of government offices economy control—the committee on the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, a committee on war expenditures, and the committee on the Defence of Canada Regulations.

The Time Grows Short

Not many days are left in which to make that intended but neglected contribution to the Red Cross funds. This is the final week of the period set for the appeal. In Edmonton, as across Canada generally, there is still a long way to go to reach the objective. The figures published seem to indicate that subscribers quite generally have put off the trouble of handing in or mailing their contributions during the early weeks. The remaining days will therefore be busy ones for those who look after the collecting and the keeping of the record. These will of course be grateful if subscriptions come in freely in the early part of the week and thus lessen the tension toward the close.

There is need of the entire amount of $10,000,000 asked for, and of the full amount of the proportion Edmonton and Alberta are called on to supply. The development of war plans and the outlook make certain that the work of the Red Cross will expand rapidly during the days ahead. The sum that is being asked for must be considered the minimum that will be required, rather than sufficient to take care of the calls which are likely to arise. To give generously and give now is the duty of every person who is in position to help provide the means without which this branch of Canada's war effort could not be carried on.

Keep Them

Subscriptions to the last Victory Loan totalled more than $991,000,000. Individual subscribers supplied more than $441,000,000, well up toward half of the total amount. The balance came from business corporations, provincial governments, municipal councils and school boards.

This marks the loan as having been a "public" financing operation without precedent. The amount subscribed by individuals was by far the largest on record. The proportion thus subscribed fell below only the per centage in the previous loan.

The "big shots" did not put up money, and were not asked to. It came out of the earnings and savings of men and women in all walks of life, in amounts large and small. Even the provincial and municipal funds invested in the bonds came from the pockets of the many, not the few; and the private corporation subscribers also represent a multitude of stock-holders who do not rank as millionaires.

This great army of Canadians never did and never could put money to better use or in a safer investment. Having made the effort and obtained the bonds, they should hang on to them as a sure protection against future want. To sell a bond unless compelled to do so is folly.

They Didn't Dare

Berlin radio is again broadcasting threats of the terrible revenge to fall upon the people of Great Britain because German civilians have been killed, injured, and suffered the loss of homes during R.A.F. raids. From the Nazi point of view it was of course quite proper to shower bombs on the residential districts of London, on Canterbury and on Coventry; but is a crime unspeakable that British bombs should be hurled at German munitions plants at the risk of missing the targets and harming civilians. From the repeated protests, it is to be gathered that even Goebbels can no longer muster up enough hardihood to tell his hearers the raids do only "trifling damage".

As for the threats, they are probably empty. If the abandoned wretches who set the morals and methods of Nazi warfare had known of any more fiendish device they dare employ against the people of Britain than those they have employed, that device would have been used long ago. If any instrument of savagery has been held in reserve—such as poison gas—it was only held in reserve because the gangsters knew that reprisals would be infinitely worse for Germany than the attack would be for Britain. They know that now more definitely than ever before—and so do considerable numbers of German non-Nazis.

We Haven't Won Yet

The smashing attack launched by Axis forces in the Donets area confirms and emphasizes the repeated warnings given by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill against assumptions that the enemy in Europe had been crippled. A similar salutary significance can be seen in the Japanese offensive, that has bridged the Yangtse and is sweeping into the heart of Chungking territory.

In neither theatre has the power of the enemy been broken. The hammer blows of the Red army are not to be discounted, but they have not threatened and do not threaten collapse of the Nazi power. And the heroic resistance of the Chinese, with what assistance the Allies have been able to give, has not reversed the tide of battle in China.

Any notion that the war has been virtually won and that victory is in sight is a sinister delusion, and something very like that notion has been gaining headway in Canada since the Russian winter campaign began to roll westward and some Japanese foot-holds in the South Pacific islands were taken from them. We shall—whether we like it or not—have to accept the sober realization that the enemy is still terrific in strength, and vigilant to take advantage of any slackening on the part of the Allies, whether it be on the fighting fronts or in the tempo of production.

To over-stress personal interests or class interests in a time like this is sabotage—none the less because unintentional. Even forethought as to post-war conditions can be dangerous if it is allowed to detract attention and energy from the one all-important duty of making sure that we, not the Axis bosses, will have the shaping of those conditions.

What is happening in southern Russia and in central China is a solemn warning that complacency and cocksureness are not only out of place but positively dangerous.

Mr. Anthony Eden did not cross the ocean just to talk about the weather with President Roosevelt. The object of his visit is not likely to be given out save in broad terms. That it is important must be assumed, and it probably has something to do with "taking the weight off Russia".

General Giraud has repudiated all the decrees issued by Vichy since the armistice, and wiped out the bureau in North Africa charged with applying restrictions on the Jews. That should go a long way toward convincing General de Gaulle that Giraud is a safe man for him to travel with.

Reports persist that Hitler has suffered a nervous breakdown, and a triumvirate of military men is said to have taken over direction of the Nazi war machine. The rumors are strengthened by the drive for Kharkov, which does not look like another of the Fuehrer's "intuitions". It is to be hoped the reports are not true, that the All Highest is in excellent health and will continue to direct the Nazi armies to their destruction. From the Allies' standpoint Adolf is the best man in sight for the job of commander-in-chief.

Saturday Night Radio Review

A Summary of a Broadcast Delivered Over CFRN March 13

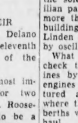

By HAROLD L. WEIR

This week, Franklin Delano Roosevelt entered the eleventh year of his presidency of the United States.

This is a matter of utmost importance to Canadians for two reasons: first, because Mr. Roosevelt has shown himself to be a great war leader whose greatness is no less valuable to us than to the American people; secondly, because Mr. Roosevelt's long incumbency in his high office is having a marked effect upon the American domestic scene. And we have learned that Canada is sharply sensitive to the impact of economic and political trends in the United States. There is always a sympathetic reaction in this country to the fluctuations of its thinking and behavior. It something we cannot escape.

It is both interesting and important to us Canadians, then, to know something about the domestic repercussions of Mr. Roosevelts' long term in office. Actually, they concern us very closely.

Friendly critics of the Roosevelt administration have been stressing the President's failure, through his absorption in the details of war, to keep his own political house in order.

Harold L. Weir

Chaotic

It has been charged—and the charge is not denied—that Washington's administrative machinery is in chaos. There is constant bickering between the heads of military and civilian production. That this strife causes no more harm than it does, is probably due to the fact that the very best American brains are engaged in it. They work under tremendous difficulties. But they are doing an amazing fine job. American production is excellent.

Nevertheless, the prestige of the administration is weakened, in the American public view, by these violently publicized quarrels.

Thus, there is a curious paradox in the situation. In all its history, the United States has not produced quite so many leaders produced, a man more admirably adapted to the winning of a war than Franklin Delano Roosevelt. Yet, in a political way, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, is at the lowest ebb of popularity in his career.

The President has chosen a cabinet with the idea of finding men most suitable for a vigorous war effort. But when he embraced this idea, he was forced to relinquish the traditional idea of a cabinet representative of every section of the electorate. In the present cabinet, only Cordell Hull of Alabama and Harold Ickes of Illinois fulfil their original political functions.

Shoved Around

And both Hull and Ickes are nationally unpopular.

The truth is that the Roosevelt administration is being shoved around. Congress is hostile. Democrats are restless.

There is no doubt that the Americans have a wonderful machine for winning the peace.

This may mean a great deal of public disillusionment after the war. It may strain the American political system to the breaking point. If the people of the United States are left restless and disappointed, that restlessness and disappointment are bound to affect Canadian thinking.

There is a criticism implied in all this. I am merely trying to make a fair report on a situation which I consider to be one of the utmost importance to the Canadian people.

Montgomery's Turn

News from North Africa indicates that Montgomery's Eighth Army is about ready to make its final assault on Rommel's forces, massed behind the Mareth line in Tunisia and in the hills to the northwest.

There seems to be a feeling that heavy fighting is due to break out almost any minute.

There is a possibility that the German might attack again. But this appears highly unlikely after the losses they suffered in their latest effort. Rommel has tested Montgomery's coordinated defence layout and found he cannot crack it. Now it is Montgomery's turn.

Rommel has more than 50 tanks in the latest battle besides many men and much material. It is doubtful if he is actually crippled. But he has taken a heavy blow. Montgomery might find it expedient to attack before Rommel can marshal can regroup his forces or get in tank reinforcements.

Unfortunately, Montgomery is strong in spite of his losses. He holds good positions in the hills overlooking the Mareth valley which could hardly be outflanked. His drawback is that he is numerically inferior to the Eighth Army which also controls the air.

It will be a difficult battle to push the enemy completely from North Africa. It may be a long job. But all the advantages are on our side and the result seems inevitable.

If Spain keeps out of the battle, the way should be clear for an attack on South Europe before the Fall of 1943.

Air Raids

The question has been raised recently whether our bombing expeditions in Europe, now functioning at their maximum peak, are really effective in bringing victory closer. It has been argued that this attempt to paste the Germans will fail because they are too closely policed and disciplined for any sudden collapse of morale.

This is something, I think, that should be thoroughly understood. We are not bombing Europe for the sole purpose of creating civilian panic. Our efforts are much more than an attempt to smash buildings along the Unter den Linden and reduce Goering's girth by oscillation.

What we are trying to do is to check the production of our enemies by bombing factories where engines and parts are manufactured and by bombing the yards where the boats are built and the berths where they put in for overhaul.

The Nazis appear to be building submarines faster than we are sinking them. This is the only field of the war in which we are not gaining on the Axis and it offers the Nazis their one hope, their only hope, of slowing down the Allied efforts.

Submarines

It is a race between the building of ships by us and the Nazi's attempt to sink them. Until last August, we were definitely losing that race. But the miracle of Allied shipbuilding has, since then, brought construction up above sinkings. On that margin, on the amount by which we can add ships beyond those sunk, depend the how fast we can get on with the war.

The challenge lies in the fact that the Germans are steadily increasing the size of their submarine fleet. Also, every time we in Canada or the United States send a soldier abroad, we must set aside about ten tons of shipping to supply him. Those are the facts that will whittle down the 19 million tons of shipping North America expects to build this year.

The most immediate job we could do on the submarine would be to knock out the Atlantic ports on the French coast, such as St. Nazaire, Lorient and Brest. If those Atlantic ports can be made useless to the Germans, and some of them are probably nearly useless now, the Nazi submarine would be driven back to North Sea bases. That would force them to make a long and hazardous journey around the north of Scotland to get into the shipping lanes of the Atlantic.

Harassing tactics are the chief means of combatting the submarine. Every measure of interfering with the building and operation of submarines is worth using. But the most immediate profit probably is in relentless efforts to knock out the Atlantic bases. That calls for more planes. It calls for more fuel. And both of these must be sent to England from this side.

A heavy bomber will use 200 gallons of gasoline an hour. A fighter will use at least half that much.

The winning of the war everywhere is paced by the Atlantic struggle against the submarine because shipping is the key which means less shipping for the Pacific also.

Thus, the air bombings in Europe and Germany are, just now, the most vital phase of the war.

Two Little Morons

Since the Legislatures of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba have unanimously endorsed a resolution asking for the establishment, by the Dominion government, of tribunals for the adjustment of farm debt, it appears that, at long last, the plight of the western farmer may be slightly alleviated.

The general attitude of government towards the farmer and his problems reminds me of the cute little story about the farmer's two little morons" who were taking a stroll along a railway track.

As they walked along, they suddenly noticed, in the light of a man, severed at the hip and lying between the ties. They glanced at it casually and then, with a shrug of other twenty feet, they encountered a dismembered arm. Further along they found a leg and a foot and a gory. They surveyed the grisly sight with a mere flicker of interest and continued their walk. Then, as they came upon a severed head, a ghastly thing, with a fixed grin of agony and wide-open, staring eyes.

The two little morons looked at it with mild curiosity. At last one of them picked it up politely and whispered into the dead, blood-spattered ear, "What's the matter? Aren't you feeling well?"

Well, that's the traditional government attitude towards the western farmer.

His economic corpse lies splattered all over the national highway. His members have been severed by high costs. His head has been battered in by low prices on his produce.

And then finally the country wakes up to the slight long enough to enquire mildly if he is not feeling well!

Rumor Clinic

And here is the rumor clinic:

Tonight I have chosen to answer a number of wild and malicious stories which have been furiously circulated recently. I have sent agents to an effort to discredit the current campaign of the Canadian Red Cross. Here they are:

The Rumor: That a member of the R.C.A.F. overseas, obliged to receive slight medical care to an injured finger, was charged for this treatment in a Red Cross

The Fact: This rumor is obviously false. The Red Cross does not do medical work. It acts as an auxiliary to the Medical Corps of all services. No service men would ever be charged for medical care and such a statement is absurd.

The Rumor: That the Red Cross doesn't need any more blood donors as there is a bottleneck in the East and that part should be in more serum than they are already getting.

The Fact: This is wrong. The laboratory in Toronto can take 12,000 donors in a week, whereas the supply at the moment is only a little more than 6,000 a week. Therefore, there is no bottleneck.

The Rumor: That the Red Cross sells blood donations.

The Fact: This is untrue. The blood, after being taken, belongs to the Government and is for the use of service men. The service the Red Cross gives is to provide the clinics and get the donors which is all done by voluntary effort. The Red Cross does not sell blood.

The Rumor: That a flyer in active service was charged for a collar button in a Red Cross canteen.

The Fact: The Red Cross does not operate canteens. The Red Cross does not sell anything. The story is merely silly.

The Rumor: That Red Cross books are not audited.

The Fact: The Red Cross is the most thoroughly audited society in the Dominion of Canada.

Now these are some of the stupid and vicious stories being told, just now, to prevent the Canadian Red Cross from collecting its urgently required ten million dollars.

Some of these yarns have been directly traced to Axis spies. There is no doubt that all of them have this origin. Because the Germans, you see, are tremendously anxious that our Canadian boys who are taken prisoner should not have gifts and comforts and that blood plasma should not go overseas to save the lives of our soldiers, that the entire work of mercy should be stopped.

The more the enemy tries to discredit the Red Cross therefore these foul and lying rumors, the greater is the proof that the work of the Red Cross is one of our most valuable assets from the standpoint of morale.

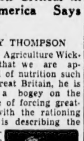

If you want to please Hitler, just refrain from making your contribution. Hitler is so easy to please, Mr. Weir broadcasts every Saturday night at 8:15 over radio station CYRN (1260 Kc.)

Poor Planning in Agriculture

Food Situation Critical in North America Says Thompson

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

If Secretary of Agriculture Wickard now warns that we are approaching a level of nutrition such as we have in Great Britain, he is either painting a bogey on the wall for the sake of forcing greater cooperation with the rationing schemes, or he is describing the worst disorganization in the history of the war.

Dorothy Thompson

The British nutrition level is that of a country that exports forty-six million people on a territory approximately the size of New England and imports more than sixty per cent of its food. Today, with a maximum intensification of agriculture it still imports forty per cent.

Our own food shortages are not due to world-wide shortages in either Britain or Russia. We are normally huge exporters of food, and we are sending practically none to our Allies. But Britain still gets an enormous percentage of her imports from the commonwealth. The Beveridge hearing and the Australinius report dispel any illusion that Americans may go hungry because our Allies are being fed. For instance we have not sent an ounce of butter to Britain.

Poor Planning

If we go hungry, or fall to the nutrition level of Britain, it will be wholly because of abominable planning in agriculture. Just now it is fashionable to attack planners. But the truth is that our whole war effort is screaming aloud for really efficient planning. Everywhere we have been the lack of foresight, knowledge, and, above all, lack of courage.

A few months ago, only a few months since Secretary Wickard was gaily carolling that there were not going to be any wheat to see in sight—although the veriest amateurs with some knowledge of the world situation, were already deeply perturbed.

As for knowledge, the miscellaneous and the misunderstandings of connections between various price ceilings, food production and labor shortages and labor prices still persists.

As for courage—instead of making an overall production plan, as in the outlet, in which all factors could be taken into account—a publicly announced plan, furthermore, so that every farmer in the country would know what the problem was and what the demands upon him, we have met every emergency as it arose. The authorities were apparently afraid of telling the whole truth, and have chosen to wait until the facts were so obvious that public pressure would support measures taken.

Crisis

Now there is a crisis—a genuine crisis. And spring is here and still there is no considered and comprehensive planning.

We should have this summer an army of at least a hundred thousand women, and three or four hundred thousand high school boys and high-school and college girls working on the land, with some previous basic training or at least mental conditioning for the tasks.

But that would have involved getting busy last fall, not in the middle of March. The extension service of the department of agriculture has had a good program, based on well-tested experience, for the recruiting, placement, and supervision of youth, in which the department of education and the federal employment service could each have performed an appropriate function. But congress has not yet passed the appropriation, because there are other things in the farm bill that it does not like.

To turn loose thousands of hastily recruited high school students without careful selection and adequate supervision will accomplish very little. The time is too late.

Trained farmers are still leaving farms for the higher wages of industries, and being accepted unquestioningly by the industries.

The priority system through which a farmer has to pass in order to get the simplest replacements for machinery or plant is unbelievably cumbersome, and wasteful of time and energy. And it is ridiculously centralized. Decisions that could be made by a bright stenographer in any township, according to clear standards and rules, have to pass through three or four bureaucracies and be settled finally in Washington.

The price ceilings are a chaos. For instance, the price ceiling on eggs is radically reduced, but the price of chicken feed is going up. Apparently no one sees a connection between the price of the grain fed to hens and the price at which eggs can be sold without loss.

Waste

The waste of food in restaurants alone fifteen to twenty million people eat daily—is shocking. In a New York chop house, an individual can still gobble down a full pound of beefsteak as one portion, and bread and butter are served to people who eat neither. Under the sanitary laws this uneaten bread and butter is then shoveled into the garbage.

The distribution of food stocks complicates the problem. Huge quantities of grain are stored in the middle west, and there is no transportation for it to the east. One wonders why these stocks were not distributed at the outbreak of the war, as they would have been if there had been people with brains, authority, and the courage to make decisions.

And the net effect of all the bureaucratic rules is to dampen and strangle the enterprise of the individual instead of releasing it into creative, productive channels.

What we need is an overall, long-range plan, based upon facts, and not upon propaganda, and the mobilization of all the farming people and communities of the country to realize it. Instead of releasing creative energy, the whole machinery of farm production is slowing down from confusion and discouragement.

SIDE GLANCES

"I'm tacking up this canned goods list where Mrs. Jones will see it—she's always trading me vegetable soup for something that's worth twice as many points!"

The Bulletin's Readers Say:

Production

Editor, Bulletin: The federal government has just announced that it will require an increase in all lines of agricultural production with the exception of cereal. Last year the farmers in Western Canada produced to the extreme of our physical capacity. We have confronting us this spring the problem of trying to save a large part of the 1942 crop in addition to seeding out for 1943. Added to all this we have much more livestock and poultry on the farms in the west than we have ever had before.

Mr Churchill says there are over 500,000 Italian prisoners of war now being held by the British government. We presume that many of these are still being held in Britain, but they could well have to be transported over long distances. According to press reports Germans are already being landed in North Africa. So there would not be a serious problem in getting these men from Africa to Canada. Many of these men must have mechanical ability such as truck and tank operators, many of them from northern Italy with a rural background. In my boyhood days I worked with large numbers of Italians in many parts of Canada. I have seen some of the best and the worst that have come out of Italy. I could not wish to work with a finer type of people than those coming from the rural areas of northern Italy. Many thousands of them had no real heart in the war. They must be heartily sick of the long months and years behind barbed wire. Why should they not be allowed to volunteer for farm work in western Canada and a special selection made of those willing and anxious to come and be put to work on the prairies at a rate of pay to be set by the government, commensurate with skill and ability.

Minister MacNamara says that there are already over twenty thousand of these Italians working and if this is true in Britain with reasonably good satisfaction.

Last year I tried to sell this idea to Federal Minister Gardiner, but no sale. This year the Board of United Farmers of Alberta were in approval, followed by the Canadian Federation of Agriculture which at this annual meeting in Calgary recently voted in favor and I presume placed that view point before the federal government.

We now hear that the government is giving consideration to this plan. If they had taken this thought last year, our stooks and swaths might not now be lying cold and wet under a blanket of drifting snow. Good food for hungry people thus being needlessly destroyed.

Vice-president United Farmers of Alberta.

My Day

BY ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON—I wonder if other people of my age have dreaded, as I did, beginning to study anything again. If anyone else is as foolish as I am, you would like to say right here, that it really is great fun to try to use your mind again in the way you did when you were at school. After my first Spanish lesson, I sat down to try to write the words I had been taught, and was horrified to find how few I remembered. Nevertheless, I found myself enjoying it.

It is fairly easy to copy what someone else is saying if you know any other foreign language, but my difficulty seems to be in thinking quickly enough. If anyone were listening to what I am trying to say, I think they would get tired before I got to the end of thinking it through.

Perhaps, with practice this will come. I shall go to each lesson hopefully and pray that some day I shall wake up and be able to think of a sentence in Spanish without slowly translating it and having to think carefully of how each word should end and with what it should agree.

I find myself confronted again with a report from the national safety council on accidents in the home. It is quite appalling and means much now in the manpower situation. Last year a total of 30,500 persons were killed in home accidents, and 4,500,000 were injured. Of these injuries, 120,000 resulted in permanent disabilities.

As housewives, we have a special job to do in the national safety council's campaign. Some of the reasons for many of these accidents can be found in the fact that we allow hallways and stairways to be cluttered up by boxes, mops, boys and children and people fall over. They do this sometimes, because we do not always adequately light hallways and stairways.

Another reason for many falls seems to be in rugs. We surely ought to be able to make these skid-proof. The kitchen seems to be the most dangerous room in the house, and we are scalds and cuts not only frequently come to the cook, but also to children, if we have small children around the house we should never leave pot handles turned out, so children get hold of them and spill the boiling contents on themselves.

The suggestion is that every woman should consider her house or apartment a business establishment, and should inspect it from time to time and require that people who do the work, including herself, live up to certain safety rules.

A dispatch from Algiers Saturday said underground reports which reached North Africa from France were that the 86-year-old chief of state suffered a stroke several days ago and was in a critical condition and probably dying in a hospital near Vichy.

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP)—Low-priced stocks of railways in reorganization and on the borderline broke sharply today in the wake of the Supreme Court's ruling in the St. Paul case which held the Interstate Commerce Commission justified in excluding shareholders of that road from participation in the revamping of the capital structure.

LIVESTOCK TRAFFIC

EDMONTON, March 15—Livestock receipts at the Edmonton Stock Yards for Mrach 13, trucked and driven, totalled 192 cattle, 15 calves and 197 hogs.

Shipments on March 12 totalled four cars of hogs, two cars of hogs and sheep and one car of hogs and calves to British Columbia; one car of cattle and four cars of hogs to Eastern Canada and one car of cattle to country points.

Moderate Activity On Grain Market

WINNIPEG, March 15—(CP)—Moderate activity in the wheat pit caused prices to fluctuate within a narrow range on Winnipeg grain exchange today. The May future closed ⅝ higher at 98⅛ cents a bushel and July added ½ at 98⅞.

Exporters, shippers and southern houses offered fair support but local buyers were credited with most of the buying. There was a suggestion of some profit taking.

Export business, in Canadian wheat estimated at 1,500,000 bushels, was reported for shipment to the United Kingdom.

Coarse grain trade was featured by the sale of 200,000 bushels of July barley to local buyers at the ceiling price of 64¾ cents a bushel.

Grain inspections Saturday amounted to 142 cars compared with 350 last year. Country marketings totalled 481,000 bushels against $380,000 a year ago.

Dominion Begins Call-Up Aliens

OTTAWA, March 15.—(CP)—Instructions for the calling up for military service of aliens ordinarily resident in Canada have been sent to the registrars of mobilization boards, Labor Minister Mitchell said in a statement today. Nationals of enemy countries are not included in the call-up.

The call-up applies to the same age and marital-status groups as for Canadians. Nationals of Allied countries have the option of joining any forces being recruited in Canada by missions of their own nationality. If they do not join forces of their own nationality they are liable for compulsory service with the Canadian forces and the labor department recommends that they consult their country's consul to determine their status.

Applications for postponement may be made by aliens on the same basis as by Canadians.

Citizens of the United States who are resident in Canada will be called up by the registrars of the mobilization boards.

Explosions Heard Across Channel

FOLKESTONE, England, March 15. — (CP) — Heavy gunfire was heard across the English Channel from the vicinity of Boulogne and Cape Gris Nez today, the bombardment continuing for some time at regular intervals.

No aircraft were heard crossing the Channel, however, and there was no other sign of activity. Observers here believed the sound might have been caused by German coastal batteries practising.

A mystery developed meanwhile as to heavy explosions yesterday on French soil in the vicinity of Calais, which English Channel observers attributed at the time to an Allied air raid.

The air ministry and other military sources in London said that they were as much in the dark as anybody and that the blasts which rattled doors and windows at Deal, on the southeast English coast near Dover, did not result from an aerial attack.

Fighter Planes Again Hit Japs On Kiska Isle

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(AP) — United States fighter planes raided Kiska in the Aleutian Islands on Friday and Saturday, the navy department announced yesterday in a communique which also told of five additional raids on enemy positions in the Solomon Islands area.

Kiska has been raided repeatedly by U. S. planes recently.

The communique also told of the 91st attack by United States planes on Japanese positions at Munda, and raids on Kahili and Ballale in the Shortland Islands and at Vila and Munda in the Central Solomons.

The navy department reported Saturday that a U.S. submarine sank a Japanese anti-submarine patrol ship in a surface duel and that two Japanese battleships had been sunk in the battle of Guadalcanal last November instead of the one previously announced.

A summary of sinkings since last Aug. 8 showed that the Japanese had lost 40 combatant ships sunk in Solomons fighting through Feb. 7 and 24 non-combatant ships, a total of 64 in both categories. The grand total of combatant and non-combatant ships sunk or damaged was placed at 182.

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

HOCKEY throughout Canada is still a lively issue with the playoffs commencing to warm up and bringing in their wake the usual crop of protests to worry the powers that be. However, spring cannot be so very far away for the 1943 schedules of National, American and International Baseball Leagues arrived during the week-end.

Washington fans as usual will be the first to see an American League game, for the traditional opener with Philadelphia doing the honors this time is billed for Griffiths Stadium on April 20. The next day all teams will go into action—Chicago at St. Louis, Detroit at Cleveland, Boston at Philadelphia and Washington at New York.

The National also starts April 21, with New York at Brooklyn, Philadelphia at Boston, St. Louis at Cincinnati and Pittsburgh at Chicago. The International opens April 21 with Toronto at Baltimore, but the other teams all begin on the following day.

In both major leagues only three trips around the circuit will be taken by each team this year, which will result in a considerable saving in transportation—35,238 actual rail miles to be exact in the case of the American.

BASKETBALL TOMORROW

BASKETBALL makes a second start at Westglen tomorrow night with a doubleheader in the newly formed "Post-Script" League. U.S. Army Engineers are playing Y.M.C.A. at 7:30 and Air Transport Civilians and U.S. Army Air Corps will clash in the second.

No definite announcement has yet been made as to dates for the Alberta playoff between No. 3 "M" Depot and the winner of the Raymond-Macleod semi-final. In the meantime the local R.C.A.F. quintet under AC 2 Pete Derbyshire is continuing daily workouts.

Arnold Henderson, former city basketball enthusiast is understood to have a serious contender for the Saskatchewan championship. He is coaching the Air Force club at Regina and Gordon Retallack, well known Westglen caper and E.A.C. and "M" Depot junior football star is with the team.

"Porky" Andrews, Neil and Hudson formerly with the "M" Depot here and prior to that with coast teams are now with Saskatoon R.C.A.F., and Regina's chief opposition for Saskatchewan honors.

CANADIANS BACK AT WORK

CANADIANS held a light workout at 119 Street rink yesterday and from present appearances they are going to be faced with quite a wait for the Saskatchewan tilfist to be determined. They will accordingly have to make the most of their practice opportunities in the meantime, for the ice cannot be depended upon to remain in shape here much longer.

Regina Commandos are still waiting for the north division winner to emerge, but Saskatoon Quakers and Prince Albert Hawks must have forgotten all about their series. In any event the northerners are certainly taking their own time in settling their end of the show.

That Delisle pair, Doug and Max Bentley now perched on top of the N.H.L. scoring heap are just apt to stay there. Doug is leading goalgetter in the league and one more point in Chicago's remaining game will tie the 76 points record set by Cooney Weiland in 1930.

Leafs Register Double Victory Over Detroit Red Wings

Toronto Clinches Third Place in N.H.L.

Same Teams Will Clash In Playoffs

DETROIT, March 15.—(CP)—The Toronto Maple Leafs clinched third place in the National Hockey League last night by defeating the championship Detroit Red Wings, 5-3, before 11,958 spectators. The Leafs thus meet Detroit in the league play-offs next week.

Toronto seized a three-goal first period lead on the Wings, lost it in the middle period and then swept in front again on late markers by Norman (Bud) Poile and the veteran Sweeney Schriner.

The victory gave the Leafs a final standing of 53 points, which the Chicago Black Hawks have an outside chance to match. The tie would be broken, however, by league rules which provide for the determination of the winner by the most victories. Toronto has an edge in that department.

The victory was Toronto's second in two nights over the Wings who lost 3-1 Saturday night to Toronto. In the season series, Detroit won five and lost four, with another game tied.

Detroit ends its regular season here Thursday against Chicago, and next Sunday Toronto and the Wings collide here in the start of the best-of-seven play-off series.

POILE, GAYE STEWART FIRE PAYOFF GOALS

TORONTO, March 15.—(CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs rode into the Stanley cup play-off series Saturday by conquering Detroit Red Wings 3-1 on the strength of a sustained third-period offensive.

A snap shot from the right boards by Norman (Bud) Poile at 5:31 of the final session broke up a tensely-waged struggle before 13,956 paid admissions and assured Leafs one of the four berths in the best-of-seven series which starts next week-end.

Gaye Stewart, announced winner Friday of the Calder trophy as the league's outstanding rookie, followed his linemate Bud Poile's example to tie the count with a goal. The Fort William left wing caught the far corner with a backhand drive fired from the right wing.

Canadiens Blow Two Chances To Overtake Chicago Hawks

BOSTON, March 14.—(CP)—The play-off hopes of Montreal Canadiens were dimmed still further last night when they blew a three-goal lead and drew 4-4 with Boston Bruins.

Only a surprise 7-5 win by New York Rangers over Chicago Black Hawks kept Canadiens in the running, one point down to Hawks for the last play-off position with each team having a single game to play.

Canadiens did all their scoring in the second period only to have the Bruins rally in the third to tie it up before a crowd of 10,000 in Boston Garden.

The Bruins, held to Busher Jackson's goal during the first period, were overwhelmed by Canadiens' storming tactics in the second. The Montrealers pelted Goalie Frankie Brimsek with 28 shots and four of them went through for goals. Gordie Drillon fired two of them and the others came off the sticks of Elmer Lach and Dutch Hiller.

DRILLON SCORES THREE IN SATURDAY'S GAME

MONTREAL, March 15.—(CP)—Gordon Drillon netted three goals to force Canadiens into a 6-6 draw with Chicago Black Hawks Saturday. The decision left the Canucks with a thin wedge forced in the door to the National Hockey League play-offs.

Besides Drillon, Buddy O'Connor was another Montreal hero with four assists to his credit. Elmer Lach had one goal and two assists. Toe Blake and Joe Benoit were the other goal-getters.

Doug Bentley scored twice and these with three points secured in Sunday's game at New York gave him the leadership in the league's scoring column, edging out Boston's Bill Cowley.

In the closing session, the Canucks took a brief 5-4 lead, but after five minutes of play the Hawks were out in front 6-5. Drillon's third goal came after the midway mark and tied up the score again.

RANGERS RALLY IN THIRD TO DEFEAT CHICAGO 7-5

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP)—After tying the score on a disputed goal, New York Rangers staged an exciting third-period rally last night to close their home season with a 7-5 National Hockey League victory over Chicago Black Hawks.

The defeat cost the Hawks a chance to clinch a spot in the play-offs, leaving them only a point ahead of Montreal Canadiens with one game to go for each of the contending teams.

A crowd of 14,107 saw the windup of the Rangers' most dismal season, during which they never were contenders for the league championship they won a year ago. The victory was only the Rangers' 11th in 48 games.

Riverland Beats Valdina Orphan At New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, March 15.—(AP) — Harold Clark's Riverland outlasted Emerson Woodward's Valdina Orphan by a nose in the $5,000 added, mile and a sixteenth Fort Jackson handicap before some 7,000 fans here Saturday.

The five-year-old gelding, under 125 pounds, also had to withstand a claim of foul lodged by Ferril Zufelt, who rode the year-younger Orphan, top-weighted starter under 125 pounds after the withdrawal of his stablemate, Rounders.

C. S. Howard's Mislead was third, four lengths behind. Marriage, carrying 119, or four pounds more than he had up when he was a long shot winner over these same horses in the rich New Orleans Handicap, again was the outsider in the betting and wound up a poor fourth, with Porter's Cap last.

Riverland, under Steve Brooks, paid $5.80 for the two and was timed in 1:44, one-fifth of a second slower than the track mark shared by Valdina Orphan and Marriage.

Lovell's Athletic Out

Aston Villa Again Beats Wolverhampton Wanderers

LONDON, March 15.—(CP)—Wolverhampton Wanderers, last year's winners of the football league War Cup, bowed out of the 1943 competition for the cup Saturday in the first round as Britain's soccer fans became cup-tie conscious.

Beaten by three goals in the first of the two-game, total goal series with Aston Villa, the Wanderers failed to rally Saturday in the return game and were defeated 5-3 before a roaring crowd of 15,000. The Villa advanced into the second round.

Cup fever reached its height at Manchester where 40,000 cheered Manchester City to a 2-0 triumph over Manchester United and captured the two-game round by 3-0.

Wales will not be represented in the second round. Lovell's Athletic, the factory team that topped the regular schedule in its division, lost out to Bath City by a round score of 3-2 despite the fact Eddie Hapgood, many-times internationalist for England, played for Lovells. Saturday's game ended in a 1-1 draw. Bath City had won the first game 2-1.

The other Welsh club, Aberaman, also failed to make up last week's deficit, losing the round 4-3 to Bristol though winning Saturday's game 2-1.

Liverpool scored the day's biggest upset, swamping Bury 7-2 after having lost the first game 3-1 last week. A crowd of 35,000 watched Blackpool advance with an aggregate 7-5 triumph although beaten by Everton 4-3.

In competition for the Southern League cup favored Arsenal trounced Watford and West Ham defeated Brighton, both scores of 4-1. Queen's Park Rangers upset Southampton 2-1.

Glasgow Rangers blanked Hibernian 2-0 in the feature match of the Scottish Southern League cup competition while Partick Thistle beat Motherwell 5-1. Celtic defeated St. Mirren 2-0.

Raith Rovers and Aberdeen drew 1-1 in the Scottish Northeastern League and Rangers downed Dundee 3-1.

Buddy Robbins and Ken Christensen with two each and Eugene Kinisk with one were the marksmen for Bennett in Saturday's game while Grant, McKenzie and Boyer scored for the losers.

The count was 2-2 at the end of the first period, Bennett made it 3-2 in the second and then tallied two more in the last while Queen Alex. could only get one.

Johnny Chad Scores Two

Mustangs Beat Currie 5-3 To Deadlock Senior Finals

CALGARY, March 15.—(CP)—With two games of the best-of-five Alberta Service Senior Hockey League championship series played, Currie Army and R.C.A.F. Mustangs are all square. Dropping the first game 2-4 Mustangs deadlocked the playoff at one victory each by outscoring Army 5-3 before approximately 3,000 paying patrons at the Arena on Saturday night. Third game is scheduled for tonight.

Cpl. Johnny Chad, who missed the opening contest because of injuries received while performing against Lethbridge Bombers, in the semi-finals, paced Mustangs with two goals. PO. Burt Scharfe, AC.2 Art Michaluk and PO. (Red) Hunter, also scored for the winners. Pte. Don Deacon, Don Culley and Alex Kaleta were the Army marksmen.

The Airmen dominated most of the game, but between passing up easy scoring chances and Frank McCool's brilliant net minding, the final count was much closer than the actual play. Mustangs not only broke up opposing rushes before they could be organized but carried play to the Army and with improved passing and superior finish, would have won as they pleased. As it was they had a 4-1 lead in the second period after being held scoreless in the first, and were able to check an Army rally at two goals during the third while they were adding one themselves.

City Curlers to Start T. Eaton Trophy Games

As a finale to the curling season the five local clubs will commence their round robin series tomorrow night for the T. Eaton Co. (Western) Ltd. trophy, which is emblematic of the city club championship.

This is a two-rink competition, with games to count, each club selecting its two top rinks on the year's play.

It has been customary to have one play on home ice with the other away, but the Granite, Edmonton and Thistle curlers are all homeless now, their rinks having been taken over for war purposes.

Edmonton curlers have been using the Royal for their home ice all winter and Thistle has been playing at Alberta Ave. The Granite, last to become orphaned, will play both games each night at either Royal or Alberta Ave.

The schedule set out below will be carried out, weather permitting. Only bona fied club rinks are eligible to play, but players may be substituted in case of sickness.

Following is the schedule:

Tuesday, March 16—Granite at Alberta Ave., both games.

Wednesday, March 17—Edmonton vs. Thistle, one game at Alberta Ave., one at Royal.

Thursday, March 18—Granite vs. Thistle, both games at Alberta Ave.

Friday, March 19—Granite vs. Royal, both at Royal; Alberta Ave. vs. Edmonton; one at Alberta Ave., one at Royal.

Saturday, March 20—No games.

Dressed 11 Men— Game Thrown Out

SAINT JOHN, N.B., March 15.—(CP)—A protest yesterday by Saint John Beavers was allowed by Frank Gallagher, Moncton president of the Maritime Amateur Hockey Association, and a Maritime semi-final game won by Pictou Shipyards Saturday night will be replayed here tonight.

The Saint John protest was on grounds that Pictou dressed 11 men instead of the maximum number of 10 allowed in a play-off.

After their 10-5 win over Beavers Saturday night, Shipyards had appeared ready to play the Halifax R.C.A.F. team for the Maritime Senior hockey championship. Pictou brushed Beavers aside in the first three games of a scheduled best-of-five semi-final round. The first score was 8-6 after overtime and the second, 5-2.

Maj.-Gen. A. D. NEW YORK, March 15—Enveloped in uncertainty and long underwear, the 1943 major league training season—strangest conditioning pageant in the history of modern baseball—will be opened formally and perhaps frigidly next week by 11 of the 16 clubs.

A week later, the other five outfits will begin grooming—also north of the "Eastman-Landis" line. This ersatz extravaganza of athletic preparation is a wartime refugee from the warmth of the southlands and California. Not only are the substitute sites far removed from Florida and Southern Cal, but the casts of the pageant have undergone so many changes since last season, and still are subject to such changes, that the number and identities of the spear-carriers still are uncertain.

Take the Cleveland Indians or the St. Louis Browns, for example. Both clubs were being roundly congratulated for having weathered the draft robustly. But within a few days each outfit lost two key men. The Indians were tapped for first baseman Les Fleming and second sacker Ray Mack. The Browns lost outfielders Walt Judnick and Glen McQuillen.

UNCERTAIN JOURNEY

AS the squads trek toward their northern quarters, managers are knawing their fingernails to the quick and wondering what men will be left in camp—who will be the survivors that the pilots can worry about as they try to limber up in the possibly inclement northern spring weather.

For the players themselves, this trip to the camps will be a journey into uncertainty. Many of them are wondering about their draft classifications as they travel—probably in day coaches and packing their own luggage. Overcoats and long underwear feature their wardrobes instead of the usual Palm Beach suits and summery sports outfits.

Anyway, the training season opens next week, and even though the early workouts are greeted with icy winds and sleet, the innovations should provide green pastures for the baseball writers—determined fellers who always are seeking new angles.

Senate Resolution

Committments by Allies For Collective Action To Maintain Peace Urged

By J. F. SANDERSON

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(CP)—Senators sponsoring a resolution for a specific United Nations organization for war and peace received tentative approval of their plan from President Roosevelt yesterday—and a word of caution from the chairman of their foreign relations committee.

Senator Tom Connally, the Texan who heads the committee which would have charge of the resolution, favored the principle of committing the United Nations now to collective action to maintain world peace after the war but indicated strongly at a White House conference that he thought any additional commitments might be premature.

Six senators discussed with the president a proposal that the United States take the lead in organizing the United Nations not only to set up machinery for a peaceful settlement of international disputes but to create a world police force to guard against future aggression, and to make full utilization of the Allies' military and economic resources in prosecuting the war and act jointly to govern temporarily and rehabilitate conquered areas.

NOT SATISFACTORY

Connally left no doubt that the resolution is unsatisfactory to him in its present form and it was understood to have been subjected to sharp criticism during a lively discussion that lasted nearly two hours.

Stemming from weeks of study and conferences among senators, the proposal was calculated by its authors to put the senate on record for the establishment at this time of a broad set of principles which would guide United Nations actions during the war and in the peace era to follow.

The foreign relations chairman was said to have told the president and his colleagues that the political situation in the Senate was such now it might be difficult to obtain approval of any except the simplest kind of resolution dealing with post-war security. The Senate's action would be worth little if only a bare majority approved the resolution, all agreed. A two-thirds majority is required to ratify a treaty.

INVITE DISSENSION

To attempt to deal in the middle of the war with economic and rehabilitation problems, Connally counselled, might invite dissension among the United Nations about a problem that was secondary to winning the war.

Mr. Roosevelt was understood to have taken no sides in the debate. He did indicate, one conferee said, that it might be wise to condense the proposal somewhat.

Connally's objections to the measure in its present form forecast some changes in it during its consideration by the foreign relations committee. There were indications, as well, that other proposals of a somewhat similar nature might be forthcoming.

CONTINUE DISCUSSIONS

Discussions on post-war collaboration among the United Nations also were continued by Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, who had talks during the week-end with various high government officials in preparation for conferences among all the United Nations on post-war co-operation and permanent international planning.

Wedding Delayed As Flier Crashes

VANCOUVER, March 15.—(CP)—Sgt. Ford Gainforth, R.C.A.F. explained to his bride-to-be, Miss Gertrude Blasche, Saturday that he was unable to appear for their wedding last Thursday, his 24th birthday, because of a plane crash.

The young flyer from Clinton, Ont., who parachuted to earth in the vicinity of Cowichan Lake, Vancouver Island, and walked on a sprained ankle for four days to safety, told his story yesterday from a hospital bed.

Gainforth was on a routine operational flight when his plane got into difficulties and he was forced to bail out last Saturday.

"My plane had gone into a spin," he said. "I opened the coupe top and undid the strap. Before I could jump the suction had sucked me right out of the cockpit and I fell away from the plane before I could find the rip-cord of my 'chute.

"I don't know how long it was until I got my parachute open. There was no time to be spared."

Gainforth said he landed on top of a tall tree, climbed down to the last branch and then dropped about 30 feet to the ground, spraining his ankle.

Goebbels Says Hitler Is Well, Directing War

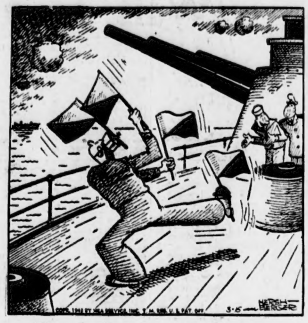

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP)—Noting reports that Hitler is ill, Nazi Propaganda Miniser Goebbels was quoted by the Berlin radio yesterday as saying that Hitler "is as healthy as a human being can possibly be and he is practically directing the war at the front as well as at home."

Goebbels was quoted as saying in the broadcast recorded by the Associated Press that the Axis U-boat campaign would prevent "Churchill from carrying out a big invasion" of Europe.

Bracken Pledges To Assist Govt. In War Effort

OTTAWA, March 15.—(CP)—John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, Saturday gave his pledge to assist the government in its war effort "insofar as an opposition can do so," and said the post-war challenge to the Canadian people will be "to win the battle of the post-war world."

Mr. Bracken spoke at a luncheon of the Dominion Progressive Conservative Association, now meeting here for organization along lines drawn up at last December's convention in Winnipeg, where Mr. Bracken was chosen leader.

"Our traditional responsibilities as critics will be duly carried out," said Mr. Bracken in his prepared address, "but we must not forget, in wartime particularly, that the first responsibility is to Canada."

Although the war so far had not cost Canada as high in human sacrifice as might have been expected, he said, losses in the near future might "shock the nation as nothing has since the casualty lists in 1918 darkened so many homes in this and other lands."

"My philosophy is a simple one," he said. "Human beings desire and deserve a better world than they have ever had before and there is enough wisdom now in the world to assure it to them."

Every man should have an opportunity to use his talents for his own and his family's welfare and to be adequately compensated for his efforts.

NO MASS UNEMPLOYMENT

"Unemployment on a wholesale scale need never exist again. The motive for enterprise which gives employment must be preserved by the assurance of fair treatment to legitimate enterprise.

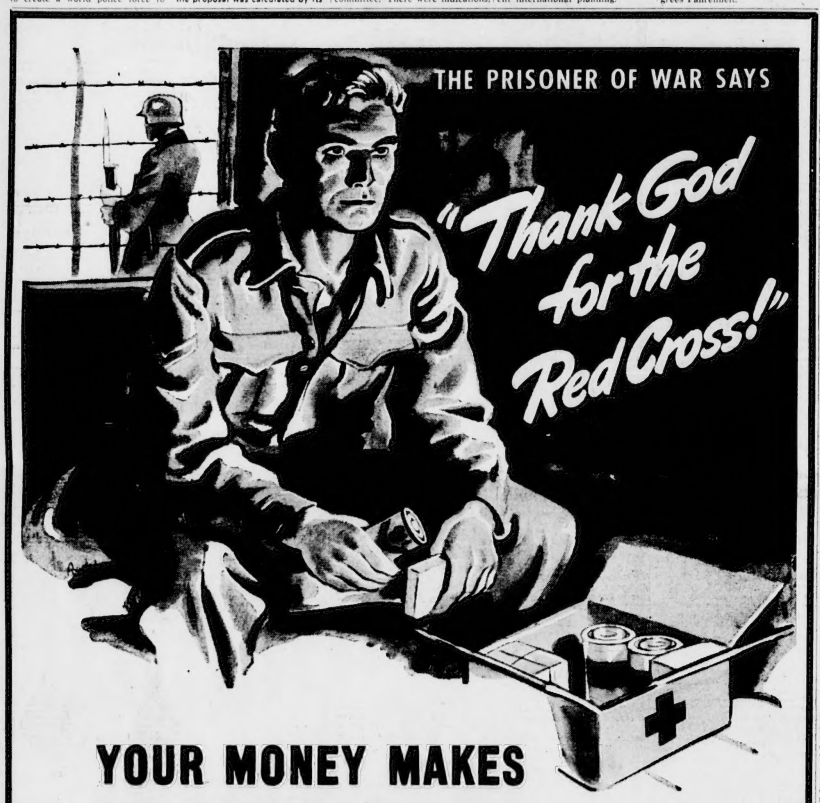

"And the state must co-operate with enterprise and step in to provide employment when, for any reason, enterprise fails to do its duty."

As leader of the party, Mr. Bracken dedicated that party "unreservedly to the service of the rank and file of the common people of Canada."

The creed of the party, he said, meant freedom of the human spirit, establishment of economic and social security as a fundamental function of the state, opportunity for employment and positive and constructive action toward achieving an enduring peace.

BATTLE FOR PLENTY

The battle of the post-war world, he said, would be a battle for fair returns, a battle for plenty as opposed to scarcity, a battle against national selfishness and a battle against the causes of war. It would be won by encouraging free enterprise, supplemented by state action.

Edmonton Will Hear Reports R.C.A.F. Life Overseas

Two Specially-Assigned Officers to Come Here For Series of Addresses

Edmontonians with sons and daughters in the R.C.A.F. will shortly have the opportunity of hearing a unique report on how their sons and daughters live, and fight under all conditions of service in Canada, and overseas, from two officers who were specifically assigned to the job by the R.C.A.F.

The officers, who will deliver several addresses in churches and other places in this city, are Squadron Leaders J. D. Parks and G. Vlastos. They will arrive in Edmonton on Saturday, April 3.

Squadron Leader Parks is on leave from the pulpit of High Park Avenue church, Toronto, one of Canada's largest churches.

Sqdn. Ldr. Vlastos, is a Greek-born minister of the Congregational Church, who has been professor of philosophy at Queen's university since 1940.

SPECIALLY PICKED

Both officers were specially assigned by the R.C.A.F. to visit all stations both in Canada and in Britain where Canadian airmen are on service. This has been completed and they are now reporting back to the Canadian people on what they have seen.

They travelled the length and breadth of Britain for three months, living with the boys of the bomber, fighting and coastal commands. Their reports are of great interest to relatives of Canadian airmen in Canada.

Old Ration Books Expire March 31

Further news on the coupon ration book front has been received by officials for the information of the housewife: coupons for sugar, tea or coffee in the old ration books will expire March 31.

C. G. McKee, regional superintendent of rationing makes the announcement with the reminder that in the old ration books, the last pink coupon for sugar, number 13, and the last green coupon for tea or coffee also number 13 became valid on February 22. Thus over a month is allowed for these, or for any other unused coupons for sugar, tea or coffee in ration book one to be turned in before March 31.

Heretofore only butter coupons were given an expiry date.

"The present ruling does not infer that dates of expiry are to be set upon coupons for sugar, tea or coffee in the new ration books," declared Mr. McKee, "But simply that coupons from old ration book one will be non-negotiable after the end of this month."

Coupons one and two in new ration books became valid on March 6

Getting Around with Jack DeLong

One of the big arguments now raging concerns membership in the Short Snorters Club. Originally, membership in this novel club was confined to pilots who had made an ocean crossing by air.

To become a Short Snorter under the early rules, one had to cross the ocean by air and then sell three pilots with the same qualifications. To each of these, the applicant for membership gave a new dollar bill. He then had each of the trio sign a fourth dollar bill on which was the name of the member-elect, together with the date.

This bill became the membership ticket. It has to be carried at all times. Any Short Snorter can challenge a "fellow-member to produce his ticket. If it cannot be produced the challenger must be paid a dollar.

THE QUESTION

What is your opinion of the new postage rate which comes into effect April 1, and how will it affect you?

THE ANSWERS

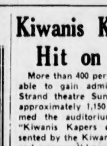

PHIL REDMAN, clerk: I think it is a good idea, providing they knock it off after the war. Although I am not a big letter-writer, another cent won't be missed on this item.

JUDY VAN MANEN, cashier: I think it's a very good idea, if it will help to win the war. It will not affect me in my letter writing.

CLIFF CARLSTROM, clerk: It won't affect me very much because I don't indulge in a lot of letter-writing. However, I have no objection and won't mind that extra penny, at all.

Calls Committee

F. C. Anderson, Social Credit M. L. A. for Calgary, has called a meeting of the House agricultural committee for March 22. This is a committee of the whole House.

Agricultural Group Meeting Set March 22nd

The agricultural committee of the legislature, including all members of the house, originally scheduled to meet Thursday morning in the Legislative buildings, will sit Monday morning, March 22, it was announced Monday by Fred Anderson, Social Credit, Calgary, chairman of the committee. The committee will discuss the sweeping bill to the Workmen's Compensation Act, introduced into the legislature last week by Dr. J. L. Robinson, Social Credit, Medicine Hat.

In view of the fact that representations will be made to the committee by parties interested in the Compensation Act, and the possibility of several sittings of the committee, it was thought advisable to start the meetings on a Monday morning, rather than a Thursday.

Other legislative committees which will commence this week are the municipal law committee, which will discuss the city of Calgary charter amendments; the railways committee, on the application of the Calgary and Southwestern Railway Company, for an extension of time to "commence and complete construction of its railway", and the private bills committee, which will review an application of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, to have rights and powers of its trustee board defined.

It is expected this week will complete discussion of the estimates now before the legislature. So far estimates for the department of municipal affairs, the department of agriculture, the executive council, and legislation have been passed. Those of the department of education on which discussion began at Friday's sitting, will probably be completed Monday.

MAJOR LEGISLATION

Major legislation to be brought before the house this session, besides the amending bill to the Compensation Act, will include some type of debt legislation. Form of this legislation will depend on results of a conference in Ottawa today, at which Hon. D. B. MacMillan, minister of agriculture, and Hon. Lucien Maynard, K.C., minister of municipal affairs, represent the provincial government. This conference in the dominion capital concerns farm debts in the three prairie provinces, and at it a resolution arising from the recent Saskatoon debt conference will be presented to the Ottawa authorities.

Kiwanis Kapers of 1943 Scores Hit on Behalf of Navy League

More than 400 persons were unable to gain admission to the Strand theatre Sunday night as approximately 1,150 citizens jammed the auditorium to witness "Kiwanis Kapers of 1943" presented by the Kiwanis Glee Club, and many well-known city artists, in aid of the Northern Alberta branch of the Navy League of Canada.

The program, one of the best presented in the city in recent years, went with a swing, and featured outstanding variety management. Turn followed turn without a break in fast moving routine to gain favorable comment from the large audience.

Two hours before the concert was scheduled to start people started lining up outside the theatre, the line-up stretching from the theatre doors to 103 street and east to 102 street and south to the lane between Jasper and 100 avenues.

Many well-known stars took part in the program, including Bernice McBeth, Jack Toulson, Doris Holland, Minnie Foster, Edith Johnson and Mary McPherson, Jack Strachan and Alex Cameron comedians; Mrs. Donald Sims, accompanist; Robert McPherson, piper, and members of the Juneau School of Dancing.

Outstanding in an excellent show was the work of the Kiwanis Glee Club, led by Ed. McGarvey. This organization has spent much time in entertaining members of the armed forces in training camps in the province throughout the winter. It was their first appearance in Edmonton this season to which the general public was invited.

GLEE CLUB A HIT

Applause greeted the Glee Club's singing of their various numbers, including "Strike Up the Band," "On Parade," "All Pull Together," "Soldiers of Fortune" and many other songs.

Miss McBeth made a hit with "The White Cliffs of Dover," and was forced to give an encore.

William Smith and Hamish Gillespie, two members of the Glee Club, also were given ovations following their solo numbers.

Styled after the fashion of a country music hall act Alex Cameron and Jack Strachan stopped the show on several occasions with the lively patter and jokes.

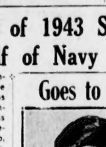

Another number that gained great favor was "The Parson of Puddles" a song presented by the "Three Clerihew Errors" Philip Knowles, Fergus Owens and Lin Jordan.

KEEPS 'EM GOING

Lin Jordan, as master of ceremonies, kept the show moving at a fast pace, and confused in no small measure to its success. Musical arrangements for the show were made by G. G. Strachan.

Cecil Cameron and his Macdonald hotel orchestra played several well-known selections and assisted with the Glee club throughout the concert.

A. M. MacDonald, former president of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, thanked the citizens for the splendid support of the show, and their generous donations to the work of the Navy League.

A pair of overalls was burned in the unheated office of the H. H. Cooper warehouse, 104 street, about 2 p.m. Saturday. As there was no heat in the building, fire is believed to have started by an oily rag or a match in the pocket of the garment. Fire halls Nos. 1 and 2 responded. Another call at 9:31 that evening to 97 street and 106 avenue, was found to be a false one.

Surmounting of Failure Proves Valuable Asset

The person who has known failure but has overcome it is better equipped to face life, than the person who never has, the Rev. J. MacBeath Miller said in a sermon delivered at First Presbyterian church Sunday morning on the importance of overcoming failure.

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed at the service after Mr. Miller's sermon.

Speaking of the sacrifice made by Christ, Mr. Miller said that He had to face death as a young man although His strength, and vitality cried out to live Today, thousands of thoughtful young men, in the army, the navy, and the air force were facing the same decision. They had a lot in common with Jesus of Nazareth, he said.

Anguish of spirit was worse than the pain of disease said Mr. Miller, who declared that he was speaking to people suffering in the hospitals.

Gethsemane was to be part of a young man who didn't want to die, who didn't want to take the responsibilities of other people's failures, but yet was willing to die.

Mr. Miller described the work that is done at St. Dunstan's hospital in London for blind soldiers, and how these men face life with a handicap that could mean complete failure without the determination to overcome it.

Many people believe that success is achievement—that the making of a name is success, but this was not true. Material gains will crumble to dust before the eyes, he said.

Belief in God made it possible for Jesus Christ to expose and cast out failure. By faith and obedience He showed His disciples the way. In these present times there must be victory over sin and victory over life.

Anthem at the service was "God is a Spirit," sung by the choir under the direction of Henry Alack. Thomas Fyfe was the soloist.

McCoy Health Service

The subject of diet is a large subject which may be approached from many different angles, but the angle which should mean the most to the average person is the angle of right diet as an aid to feeling one hundred per cent well.

If incorrect eating were followed quickly by a marked loss of health it would be easier for the average individual to see the connection between his lowered state of health and his habitual way of eating. Yet this immediate effect is generally lacking and the person making continued errors in diet does not usually notice any prompt illness. The only exception to this is the acute indigestion which may result from a single unwisely chosen meal.

In the latter instance the patient may see the relationship between the sickness and the food intake, but as a general rule, he does not see that his continued dietic mistakes are operating in such a way as to steal away his normal sense of well-being. Yet it is these mistakes which are reducing his vigor and gradually building that condition where at first he is not really sick, nor really well; and later, he is actually ill.

Whenever there is a gradually developing loss of health and energy, a possible cause is faulty diet.

The person who is conscious of a lack of health usually describes his plight in terms of symptoms. Thus, he may complain of a tired feeling, may say he lacks endurance, or may say he is rundown.

Any of these symptoms may be built upon a foundation of poor eating habits. The person who complains of them would do well to study what he eats and to check his findings against the food requirements of a normal person enjoying normal health.

Nutritional experts have worked out a very good phrase to describe those who get almost enough, but not quite enough, of the food essentials. The phrase is "nutrition minus." That suggests very accurately that the patient is getting some of the nourishment he needs, but as it is not quite complete, the minus sign is put there to indicate that there is room for improvement. Many who are now the victims of poor health are demonstrations of "nutrition minus" symptoms of eating.

A change in the diet of such individuals would be quickly apparent in an improvement in well being. They would have more strength and energy, the vital organs would function better, their skins would be more attractive, and all in all they would change over from the group made up of those who are not really well, to the group literally brimming over with health.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large, stamped, self-addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 1151 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

Women's New Freedom Not All Happiness

An Increase in the Number of Divorce Cases Since the Beginning of the War Is Indication of the Liquidation of Old Standards of Home

One of the unexpected by-products of the war is the increase in divorce, which has reached an all-time high even for this country where swapping husbands and wives may be said to be a national pastime. And the reason given for this is the financial independence women have achieved through doing war work. Apparently just as thousands of women are buying themselves now the fine clothes and jewelry they have longed for all their lives but could never afford before, so other thousands of women are spending their money in freeing themselves from miserable marriages that they had to endure because they were dependent upon the husbands who mistreated and abused them.

It is, of course, a sad and morbid thing that the most sacred relationship that can exist bebetween men and women has a price tag upon it, but, alas, such is the case. None of the major sins blight so many marriages as does the financial problem and when a bride and bridegroom begin arguing over the division of the pay envelope the honeymoon is over. Love can take many a hard knock and still come up smiling, but when a husband begins asking his wife what she did with that quarter he gave her week before last, or a wife commences dealing out carfare to her husband, it has gotten a knockout blow which is never survived.

MARRIAGE COMES HIGH

It is not too much to say that if every husband were a millionaire with an open hand, and if wives could grow their own fine feathers and conjure good meals out of the air by waving their hands over the dining tables, that marriage would be the grand, sweet song of which poets and novelists write, instead of the anvil chorus that it so often is in real life.

Nor is this hard to understand, human nature being what it is and all of us as prone to selfishness as the sparks are to fly upwards. Before marriage a starry-eyed young couple think that nothing but love matters. And the man honestly believes that it will be a joy and a privilege to work and support Angelina and the little Angies and that he won't mind resigning from his clubs and not having custom-made shirts any more and riding in a second-hand car. And Angelina is sure that basement bargains will look like snappy little models if she wears them for love's sake.

But when the first fine rapture is past and the husband sees all of his hard earned money, on which he could have such a good time, going for groceries and beauty treatments and having Sally's teeth straightened and Tommy's adenoids out, and the wife realizes that she is just a domestic servant who works for her keep, it is no wonder that so often they ask themselves what price marriage, and figure out that it isn't worth what it costs.

The situation is a difficult one for both parties because, unless the husband is a heel, he can't walk off and leave the woman he has sworn to love and cherish and endow with all his worldly goods flat. She is dependent on him and so he has to stick it whether he likes it or not. And the wife has to endure her marriage, no matter what sort of a martyrdom it is, because her husband is her meal ticket.

NEW INDEPENDENCE

At least that has been the setup for ages, but not now. The war has opened the door of opportunity to millions of women who never dreamed that they had any money-making ability. They have found that they have unsuspected talents and skills, and that they can make wages that look to them like fortunes. And so they are snapping the marriage bonds that had galled them so long and are getting a new hair bob and some swanky clothes and a divorce and are nailing a "For Rent" sign on their homes.

Today is a grand spree for both husbands and wives, for if the wife is free of the husband for whom she has lost her taste, he is equally free of her, for no man has to support a self-supporting wife. But what sort of headache they will have tomorrow, nobody knows. For you meddle with TNT when you upset the custom and conventions that civilization has evolved through thousands of years.

Woman's greatest charm for man has always been her helplessness, her dependence upon him that made him feel superior. It brought out all the chivalry and the best that was in him. Will men feel that way about women who are better carpenters or bricklayers or bankers than they are, and make more money? Are women going to be happier spending their days in offices and factories than they are in their homes? And who is to rear the children, supposing there are any such, and hear their prayers, and cuddle them on their breasts when Mama is away flying a bomber, or building a bridge?

Nobody knows the answer to these questions, nor where women are going on this strange new road on which they have set their feet, but it does not seem to me that it leads to a House of Happiness.

The City of London is actually a very small area within London itself. It is one of the twenty-eight boroughs which make up the capital city. It covers 675 acres, and has about 100,000 people in its boundaries. The real name by which the British capital is officially designated is "The Administrative County of London." It and New York are the two largest cities in the world.

McKenney On Bridge

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY
America's Card Authority

This is the seventh of a series of 12 articles on the new laws of contract bridge, which will become effective throughout the country on April 1.

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY
America's Card Authority

Many strange things can happen at the bridge table, and it is up to the lawmakers of the game to formulate rules to cover as many general situations as possible. It would not be possible to cover every specific situation that might arise. If this tremendous task were to be attempted, the committee would need about five years to prepare the laws and the written laws would comfortably fill a half-dozen volumes.

Let us take today's hand for example. The bidding was normal up to the point shown in the box. At this point East said, "Oh, it's spades you bid, not clubs—a harmless remark but one which East had no right to make. It might have far-reaching effects on the result.

Barring East and West from the auction would not be enough. West had been given the information that East had spade support. West could lead the spade suit with impunity and gain a trick by so doing.

The new laws provide that if any player makes a remark locating a card or cards in his hand, the declarer has the privilege of calling the lead. In this particular case, South could call a trump lead and make six-odd, while an opening spade lead would hold him to five.

Points for Parents

By EDYTH THOMAS WALLACE

Friend: "How much time each day do you spend with Dick?" Father: "We don't keep track, but we sure have fun together, don't we, Son?"

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Why don't parents take advantage of the long months prior to their children's births to make themselves conversant with the foundations of good child care and training?

I do not know any satisfactory answer. Child care ought to be a mother's chief concern. When she walls herself against advice it can only be some sense of personal inferiority will not allow her to admit there is anything she needs to be told. She prefers to make mistakes rather than appear to be ignorant.

Mrs. B. D. asks, "I wonder why mothers do not prepare themselves during pregnancy and avoid so many mistakes? Are they blind, deaf—or just dumb? It takes such a little common sense, plus some good professional help, to rear a healthy baby.

"I am going to tell you a story that is the acme of something or other. Five years ago a baby was brought to the doctor's office. The baby was 8 months old and fat. But the mother thought it cried too much. The husband had not been able to cure the baby's spoiled nature by spanking! Maybe something was wrong.

"The doctor asked about the feeding formula and she—a former school teacher—said. "2 parts water and 1 part milk.' The doctor said something impatiently, 'And what else?' mentioning cereal, eggs, meat, vegetables, etc., to which she said, 'Oh, he doesn't get any of those things.'

"The baby cried most of the time and got spanked for being spoiled yet the parents had to increase the number of his feedings until he was getting milk once an hour. It seems never to have occurred to her that the formula she got for the baby when she brought this breast-fed home, wasn't suitable all the rest of his life.

"Why are people so careful during the pre-natal period and so neglectful after baby is born? Why don't parents study child care? Why don't doctors tell parents that formula and feedings have to be increased as the child grows? Why do people deride child-care columns and say that no doubt the writer never had a child? Why do so many persons consider crying to be a habit and assume taking care of a crying baby will spoil him? Couldn't you answer these questions in your column?

The knowledge of the correct procedure is easy enough to get from dozens of sources, beginning with the personal doctor, the government magazines, books and newspapers.

If the author is trained in her work she is worthy of respect, childless or no. The probability is very great that she got her first interest in the subject when she had her own children and longed to know more than she did. If people won't learn, or be critical of their own ignorance no one can help them. It's tragic that it should be so.

Our leaflet, "The First Six Weeks," is an introduction to early child care principles. It may be had by sending a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Mrs. Eldred in care of this newspaper.

Meatless Dinners Can Be Delectable

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

Let's do some planning in the face of the meat situation—we have several alternatives. We can go all-out and serve the old-time roast, as often as our meat ration will permit, and omit meat from other dinner menus. If that is the verdict in your family, you'll want to plan a meatless main dish for the meatless dinners. Here is a suggestion which should soothe the ruffled feelings of members of the family who, having eaten their roast, are counting the days until the next one makes it appearance.

GNOCCHI WITH SPANISH SAUCE

(Serves 4-6)

One cup milk, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup wheat-meal, ¾ cup grated American cheese, 1 egg, well beaten; paprika.

Heat milk in saucepan. Add salt and wheat-meal gradually, stirring constantly. Bring to a boil and cook and stir 3 minutes. Remove from heat. Add ¼ cup cheese and egg and blend. Pour into shallow pan. Chill. Place spoonfuls or 2-inch squares in shallow baking dish and cover with Spanish sauce. Sprinkle with remaining cheese and paprika. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) 15 minues, or until cheese is melted.

SPANISH SAUCE

One and one-half tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons chopped onions, 3 tablespoons chopped green pepper, 4 tablespoons diced celery, 1½ cups canned tomatoes, ¼ teaspoon salt, dash of pepper.

Melt butter in skillet; add onion, green pepper, and celery and cook slowly until onion is golden brown. Add tomatoes and seasonings. Cook slowly until sauce is thickened. Makes about 1 cup sauce.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Stewed rhubarb, oatmeal, buttered toast, jelly, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Dried lima bean casserole, wholewheat bread, butter or fortified margarine, raw carrot and turnip sticks, custard, tea, milk.

DINNER: Gnocchi with Spanish sauce, mixed raw and cooked vegetable salad, French bread with butter or fortified margarine, stewed fruit, nut cookies, tea, milk.

Production of Oil In Alberta Down 3,000 Barrels Day

CALGARY, March 15.—(CP)—Alberta's oil production remained at about 3,000 barrels a day less during the past week than during the corresponding week in 1942, the weekly report of the Conservation Board revealed Saturday.

The total daily average yield for the province in the week ended March 8, 1943, was 26,951 barrels from 222 producing wells compared with 29,578 barrels from 205 producing wells during the week ended March 9, 1942.

What To Do

If you are going to have your picture taken to send to your man overseas or in camp—please heed a few suggestions given here.

Don't try to be a glamour girl in the picture. Don't dream up a new and intricate hairdo, but fix your hair as he has always seen it.

Wear a plain everyday dress—not an extoic sleeveless sensation.

Don't try to pose in a coy or artificial manner. He wants to see you looking real, friendly, casual and most of all he wants it to look like you—not a strange, glamourous female he doesn't recognize.

Put your makeup on carefully, adding a little darker and heavier lipstick with a sheen. If your lashes and brows are light add a little mascara for accent — but don't bead your lashes.

British Women Are Masters Wartime Living

By WILLIAM B. KING

LONDON, March 15. — (CP) — Britain's afternoon teas have been replaced by knitting and mending gatherings. Marketing trips are made by bicycle instead of automobile. A go at insects in the vegetable garden takes the place of the occasional golf game. A weekly turn at neighborhood fire watching substitutes for dinner and theatre.

Those are the changes war has brought into the daily life of Mrs. O. R. Tisdall, mother of three children, who "dismisses blitz nights spent in the cellar as commonplace and counts herself fortunate if she is able to hold her family together.

This tall, energetic wife of a physician calls herself the "typical middle-class English housewife." She refuses to recount hardships of wartime life. Instead, she tells gleefully of the jam she was able to make with 20 pounds of sugar saved through close watch of the family's rations over the past year.

Family ration cards make for diversified staples, Mrs. Tisdall maintains. Older children pass their clothes down to the younger ones, and this particular family feels it needs no outside entertainment.

IN LONDON AREA

The Tisdalls closed part of their house for the duration, foregoing luxuries and eating simpler meals. Living in the Middlesex district on the fringe of Greater London, the Tisdalls reacted like most parents in the capital area, and sent their children to the country at war's outbreak.

After eight months, however, the children were brought home, and were here during the blitz period which shattered large sections of London.

"We slept in the cellar on raid nights," Mrs. Tisdall recalls lightly. "We tried very hard to remain calm so the children wouldn't become panicky. They slept right through it all, although bombs dropped a quarter of a mile away."

In her position of deputy group administrator for the Women's Volunteer Service for Civil Defence, Mrs. Tisdall had her hands full on the mornings following air raids. She had to supervise distribution of clothing and food to bomb victims and assist in the multiple problems of rehousing and rehabilitation.

Dr. Tisdall's duties mounted with the intensity of the blitz, and have become even greater since, as more and more physicians have been called into the armed services.

On a typical day, Mrs. Tisdall arises at 7 a.m. to cook breakfast, dress her 4-year-old daughter, and get her 7-year-old daughter off to day school. The 10-year-old son attends a boarding school. After giving instructions to her one remaining maid she pitches into W.V.S. work. Lunch and tea are simple affairs.

SIMPLE MEALS

"It is at dinner we feel the change most," she says. "Before the war we used to make quite a thing of it, but now we are content with one main dish, usually a simple one."

The Tisdall garden is the family's particular pride. Flowers have been banished. Instead, there are onions, carrots, beans, cabbage, beets, cauliflower and artichokes.

"My green grocery bills were enormous before the war, but now we are self-supporting in vegetables," Mrs. Tisdall says proudly.

The changes three years of war have made in the life of Mrs. Tisdall have been gradual, and she would rather not try to analyze them.

"I try to keep as busy as I can, and when I am busy I don't have time to think."

Wartime regulations, however, have severely reduced her personal income, while war taxes and higher living costs have similarly cut the doctor's income.

"Yes, we definitely have less to live on," she says. "But then, that's all right. There is less to spend it on."

Four vacant rooms had also been taken over, and a housekeeper had been given a position.

John A. Menzies escorted the bride to the altar, and Arnold Gardner, organist, played Wagner's bridal march from Lohengrin. The bridal party was ushered into the church by W. G. Skinner and J. Caldwell.

The bride chose a smart floor-length gown of white sheer and satin, fashioned with high neckline, full wrist-length sleeves, gathered waist, and full skirt styled with narrow graduated tiers of satin and sheer. Her heart shaped chapel veil fell from a coronet of white satin rosettes. She carried a muff of white satin and baby bonnet lace with corsage of Shasta roses, violets, white heather and fern. Her only piece of jewelry was a gold locket, gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Ruby and Miss Violet Walker attended their sister as maid-of-honor and bridesmaid. They wore ensembles of deep mud berry shades, styled with panne velvet jacquettes, bracelet length sleeves and full taffeta skirts, reaching to the tips of their toes. They wore chapel veils to tone and carried colonial bouquets of spring flowers.

Wash them with only the gentlest of hand-squeezing in thick, cold soapsuds and lukewarm water. Never rub or wring them. Rinse thoroughly in clear water of the same temperature as the suds bath and roll in a thick towel to absorb excess moisture. Occasionally shake napped fabrics lightly during drying to restore the brushed surface.

In Memoriam 7

To assist readers in preparing "In Memoriam" notices, The Edmonton Bulletin has prepared a booklet of some very appropriate verses. It is free upon request. Call, write or phone for a copy.

IN loving memory of Mrs. Serena Metheral who passed away March 15, 1941.

Nothing can divide us [illegible] Mother,
Or sever the cords of love;
She is resting peacefully with Jesus,
In that beautiful home above.

—Ever remembered by T. J. Metheral, Ke[illegible] and Kathleen.

IN loving memory of James Clive Lohnster who passed away at Cadomin, March 15th, 1941.

The years may wipe out many things,
But this they'll wipe out never,
The memory of those happy days
When we were all together.

We think of him in silence,
His name we oft recall,
But [illegible]
But his picture on the wall.

—Ever [illegible] Father, Mother, Sister, Brothers, his Grandmother, Mrs. Bates.

Refused Move Car: Man Is Fined $10

John Veloshin was asked by Magistrate A. I. Millar, K.C., in police court Monday morning, if he thought he could do as he liked. Veloshin, charged with obstructing a Canadian Pacific Railway policeman while doing his duty, merely repeated that he had been waiting for a passenger at the C.P.R. station. Asked by the officer to move his car from where it had been parked in the loading zone, the accused refused. A second request received the reply to "go ahead and make him" move the vehicle, the officer told the court.

Before fining Veloshin $10 and costs or 14 days, Mr. Millar delved into the past and told the accused he had been in court before, charged with breaches of the Motor Vehicle Act, dangerous driving, and assault, as far back as 1933.

Ray Silvios' charge of dangerous driving earned for him a fine of $20 and costs or 30 days. He repeated the story he told at the time of his arrest that he did not know he had struck a taxi as the latter vehicle was backing away from the curb outside The Barn dance hall. Magistrate Millar thought it strange that the impact should not have been noticed. He warned the accused to be careful about drinking and driving, adding that he stood a chance of losing his license. "Don't let it happen again," said the magistrate.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Goyan are "at home" again. Application was made to have the charge of non-support withdrawn, but the court was reminded that there was some expense in connection with the case. Magistrate Millar was willing to allow the case withdrawn, provided these costs were paid. Everything was fixed up and everyone is happy.

* * *

Marvin Yeo told Magistrate Millar he had had no intention of defrauding a Manville boarding establishment of $13.83. He just couldn't find the proprietor around, and as he had to leave on an early morning bus, came away owing the bill. He had intended squaring up at the end of the month, he said. Magistrate Millar recalled that Manville was not so big but what the accused could have located the proprietor if he had so desired. He levied a fine of $5 and costs or seven days. Yeo was arrested by R.C.M.P. at Gibbons and brought to Edmonton.

Spencer Bishop pleaded guilty to driving a truck without chauffeur's or driver's license. This was discovered when his vehicle was involved in an accident. He was fined $3 and costs or five days.

* * *

George A. McKeever's charge of assault against Fred Nonnecke, a landlord-tenant case, was withdrawn on payment of court costs. Jacob Arth was fined $20 and costs or 30 days when he was found guilty of dangerous driving; of four called, three pleaded guilty to intoxication and each was fined $20 and costs or 30 days. The fourth didn't turn up.

Premier Tojo Visits Nanking Puppet Chief

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP)—The Tokyo radio, in a broadcast recorded by The Associated Press, reported that Premier Hideki Tojo returned to Japan today after a visit to Nanking to discuss "important questions" with Wang Ching-Wei, Chinese puppet premier of the Nanking regime.

It was Tojo's first official visit outside Japan, the broadcast said, and was made to return Wang's visit to Tokyo last year "and also to extend Japan's official congratulations to the National Government on its entry into the war in greater East Asia."

The puppet government sometime ago announced it had "declared war" on Britain and the United States.

CHUNGKING, March 15.—(AP)—The Chinese press said today that Japanese Premier Hideki Tojo wishes to make Wang Ching-Wei, head of the puppet Nanking government, a virtual quartermaster-general for exploitation of Chinese resources and manpower in the Pacific war.

Commenting upon Tojo's visit to Nanking, the newspapers appeased again to Britain and the United States for greater attention to the Far Eastern theatre.

The consensus was that Tojo hopes to devise a means of counteract the Allied strategy evolved at Casablanca during "the nine-month breathing spell" which would be afforded the Japanese under the decision to concentrate the bulk of the Allied power against Hitler in 1943.

Goering Putting Pressure on Duce

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP)—Tass, Russian news agency, said in a dispatch from Geneva received today by the United States office of war information that Reichsmarshal Goering, who has been reported in Rome, is trying "to bring permanent pressure to bear upon Mussolini at the present critical stage of Italo-German relations."

Tass said Goering "is charged with a personal mission from Hitler to Mussolini and, according to rumors, will stay in Rome a long time."

Another Tass dispatch from Lausanne received by the O.W.I. said the Italians have not yet consented to German demands reportedly calling for 300,000 Italian workers for German industries and 15 new Italian divisions.

Nazis Say Million Polish Workers Now in Germany

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP)—The German radio reported last night that 1,000,000 Polish workers from the German-occupied section of Poland have gone to work in Germany. Canadian Soldier Given Six Months For Manslaughter

The jury at his trial returned the manslaughter verdict.

Nazis May Try Surprise Blow Against Allies

By DOUGLAS WERNER
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright, 1943, by British United Press

LONDON, March 15.—Official quarters were giving serious consideration today to the possibility that the Germans might launch a desperate and surprise assault soon against the Allies to avert a second front and give the Wehrmacht a last chance to crush the Red army.

Such an assault obviously would be aimed at prolonging the war and increasing the chances for a stalemate or a negotiated peace.

If the Nazis could prevent a real fighting front in western Europe this year, their general staff could muster its last resources for a supreme attempt to crush Russia in a "battle of annihilation" for which Hitler has been striving since June, 1941.

SEVERAL POSSIBILITIES

The Germans have several possibilities for a surprise assault in the west.

1.—Gas bombing of British cities and gas shelling on the Russian and African fronts.

2.—Large-scale air attacks against Britain to disrupt offensive plans.

3.—Large-scale commando raids on Britain, possibly accompanied by paratroop actions, designed for the same purpose.

4.—Invasion of Spain, or Turkey, or both, to force the Allies to divert strength to a new front.

The possibility that the Nazis might spring a "secret weapon" against the Allies also has been considered but military authorities are inclined to scoff at this as "the perennial Goebbels nightmare."

WOULD LENGTHEN WAR

It is generally admitted here that should the Germans succeed in forestalling a second front and in knocking Russia out of the war—which is doubtful in view of all previous attempts—the Nazis could concentrate military strength so formidable in western Europe the war would be prolonged indefinitely.

As for gas, Allied leaders do not believe its employment would affect our offensive plans.

The Germans undoubtedly could resume large-scale air bombings of Britain, informed sources believed, but not on a scale comparable to the current Anglo-American air offensive. Anything less, it was said, could hardly bring the results that the Nazis need.

Large-scale commando attacks however, could be launched, it was said. In this connection the Sunday Express revealed that the Germans have a new six-engine Blohm-Voss flying boat, capable of transporting 80 men, and power gliders which carry 120.

RAID WORTH WHILE

Even if the Germans had to sacrifice 100,000 troops in carrying out a huge commando raid on Britain, observers said the result certainly would be worth while if it gave the Nazi high command time to deal with Russia before being faced with an Allied invasion of the continent.

Such a raid also should bolster German home morale which has been grumpy due to the failure of the Luftwaffe to retaliate against R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. bombing assaults.

In this connection German Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels, commenting at a press conference about Allied plans for a second front, boasted last week that "Germany will soon be able to deal Britain such a blow that the British will awake from their wishful thinking."

The Sunday Express warned that Germany has only one hope of stalling a second front and that would be diversionary attacks.

Such attacks, observers said, would be in line especially with Marshal Erwin Rommel's theory of always hitting the enemy first, especially when he is about to hit you.

Churchill Sends Roosevelt Film, 'Desert Victory'

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(AP) — Anthony Eden, Britain's foreign secretary, was a dinner guest of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt at the White House last night and stayed on to see a movie depicting the British 8th Army's victory over Axis armies in battling all the way from Egypt to Tripoli.

The film was sent to the president by Prime Minister Churchill at points, it showed American-made General Sherman tanks in action.

Mr. Churchill sent this letter to the president:

"My Dear Mr. President:

"I hope you will accept the accompanying copy of the new film, Desert Victory, which I saw last night (March 4) and thought very good. It gives a vivid and realistic picture of the battles and I know that you will be interested in the photographs of your Sherman tanks in action.

"I am having the film sent to you by air so that you may see it as soon as possible.

"I was sorry to see that you had been ill and I hope that you have fully recovered. I am feeling very much better and hope soon to return to full work.

"With kindest regards and all best wishes to Mrs. Roosevelt, Harry (Hopkins) and yourself.

"Yours Always,

The film was presented to the president by a British lieutenant colonel, David MacDonald, under whose direction it was made.

Diet of Family Should Include Fish Each Week

By DI TITIAN

From a diet standpoint, fish, meat, cheese, eggs and milk are the groundwork in the building of a sound diet. In the basic structure of meals today, the essential materials. They are the proteins without which no diet is adequate.

And fish, as seafood, has certain benefits, in addition to its protein that make it highly valuable from a nutritional standpoint. It is rich in iodine.

Its iodine content probably gave rise to the idea that seafood is a "brain builder," because it is true that adequate iodine intake is necessary for the great regulator of our intelligence—the thyroid.

Women who have given birth to cretins have, after being duly prescribed amounts of iodine, given birth to normal children. People who derive their food solely from that raised on soil deficient in iodine (without supplementing the lack) often have a lower level of intelligence than those who have iodine-rich foods. This is true even in this country according to scientific findings.

OFFER ADDED VALUES

Seafood, then, should be included in menus not only because it is usually a cheaper form of protein than the popular meat, but because it has additional values to offer and ones needed. We should all eat fish of some kind once a week and, preferably, at least twice.

Some of our seafood is, of course, eaten raw, such as clams or oysters but people far away from the seacoast must, in most cases depend on fish in cans or fish that is dried or frozen. Now that there is to be a reduction in what is called "convenience" canned products, such as clam chowder and perhaps canned cod fish cakes (with potato added) the light easy-to-ship dried fish and the frozen variety will become increasingly popular.

ARE AVAILABLE

Shrimps, clams, oysters, crabs and lobster all come frozen and in cans and are also very generally available fresh throughout the country in fish markets. Scallops and mussels are among the "denizens of the deep" that deserve our attention. The Syrians use mussels as an appetizer and the French and Italians both make them into a lusty seafood chowder.

GOES A LONG WAY

A little seafood—because of its own distinctive flavor and "meatiness" goes a long way.

Learn to make shrimp creole, our ried seafood, shrimp "wiggle" (delight to children with its colorful combination of shrimp, green peas and rice), Jambolaya and the dozens of easy, delicious seafood recipes every cookbook offers.

CURRIED SHRIMP

Dissolve 3 bouillon tubes in 1 cup boiling water.

Add 3 level teaspoons of curry powder.

Cook constantly, stirring for five minutes.

Then set aside.

Fry 6 strips of bacon, crisp. Drain.

Fry ½ of Bermuda onion in bacon fat.

Drain fat then put curry sauce in pan with onions.

Add ½ cup evaporated milk, cook 10 minutes.

Add whole shrimp (or beef, lamb or chicken in cubes).

Then add 1 tbs. corn starch.

Mixed with ¼ cup water.

Hardboil 2 eggs and chop with dried bacon.

Add this to curry just before serving.

At table mix with mixed cocoanut, Chutney, chopped walnuts and candied ginger.

Allied Warplanes Resume Air Blows In Calais Region

LONDON, March 15 — Allied planes resumed the offensive against Europe late today, touching off a flurry of activity in the Calais region of the north coast of France.

Observers on the southeast coast of England heard a burst of gunfire across the channel, and soon thereafter several Spitfires flew over from the east. The roar of other planes flying high above the Spitfires was audible.

Thousands Clamor For Second Front At London Rally

LONDON, March 15. — (CP) — Thousands of persons attending a meeting under Communist party auspices in Trafalgar Square yesterday shouted their approval of a resolution urging the immediate opening of a second front in Europe.

Two Motorists Are Arrested After Crashes

Two drivers of motor vehicles were arrested late Saturday, both charged with dangerous driving. They are Ray Silvios, operator of a truck, and Jacob Arth, 10963 95 street.

Silvios struck a Corona taxi as the driver, Syd Hays, backed the vehicle away from the curb in front of the Barn dance hall, 103 street about 11:45 p.m. The truck did not stop until it ran overtaken by the taxi at 102 street and 102 avenue.

UNAWARE OF DAMAGE

Silvios said he had seen the taxi backing into the street and had sounded his horn several times. He continued driving, he said, unaware that he had caused any damage to the rear of the taxi. The truck was unmaged.

Arth's car struck the rear of a bus driven by Henry Robertson, 9647 107 avenue, as the latter vehicle stopped to pick up passengers at 106A avenue and 96 street at 6:30 p.m.

Arth's statements, police said, were incoherent, and he declared he did not know how he ran into the rear of the bus; he was unable to say how the accident occurred. Marks on the road, according to a police statement, showed that the car had skidded into the bus.

Bus-driver Henry Robertson stated that the same car and driver nearly ran into his bus as he was passing the York hotel and the car was backing out from the curb.

The bus was undamaged, but the front of the car was damaged considerably. The car was towed away following Arth's arrest.

GLIDER GIRL

Soar to Thrills and Adventure in the Sky With a Girl Who Flew to Romance . . .

By Oren Arnold

All characters and incidents in Glider Girl are entirely fictitious.

CHAPTER I

MISS PAT FRIDAY was in that ominous state of mind known as I-won't-stand-for-it-any-longer.

She had, in fact, just ceased to stand for it. Half an hour back she had told the boss where he could go, and it wasn't heaven. Or at least she had implied it enough to need a new job at once.

Pat was like that. Being a lady is very difficult if the boss is a heel and pays you only $22 a week anyway. Moreover, her job had little or nothing to do with either patriotism, adventure or romance, three items which Pat held to be important. And it was down in the second basement, which made her feel like an owl or a mole. Surely there would be a job, somewhere, with a boss who minded his own business and gave her a chance to see the sun. She was rocking now with the Uptown bus, and a fat lady crowded her tight.

"Stop it!" Pat snapped at her; then instantly added, "Oh, I didn't mean that! I'm sorry!"

You see? That's the state of mind Pat was in. Touchy. Fed up. She was not the kind who snapped at people. It made her ashamed. She just had to do something, wherefore she burrowed deeper into the long "Help Wanted" column of the newspaper which she held folded near her nose.

Half way down, a large want ad arrested her. It was in bold face indented type, as if extra important:

"Certainly not!" she shot back, as military as he. "I am Miss Friday. Please, I-let's go in. After you."

She almost shoved him through the door. Then she closed it and put her back to it with the waiting girls outside. She looked up at him. He was a handsome man.

"I—I had to do it!" she spoke much less defiantly. "But anyway I don't see any Miss Stuart. And I can call your major and your—your—I can do anything you need done!" Her tremble had crept right into her voice.

Silence held them for a long moment. She felt him appraising her. Then she relaxed, just a little, when he showed a slow, interested smile.

"I only work here," he suggested.

"You are Mr. Carr?"

"Yes."

"I—I—you said 'source mind.' I looked it up. The dictionary. It didn't help, but I guessed maybe—well look—here's the list—those girls. Somebody had to—to help you!" She emphasized the same. "It was a silly want ad. Of course you'll get a million applicants with an ad like that. And you only need six."

Silence held them again. Could he now see her pulse jumping and hear the thunder in her heart?

Finally it was he who broke the spell, and he spoke not with military crispness but in a boyish western drawl.

"Maybe you have something. Maybe we had better sit down and talk, till I can see what the score is."

Again Jimmy Carr was smiling.

CHAPTER II
ENGAGED

PAT sat far on the edge of her chair, as if poised for flight. Her eyes were wide and beautiful, as always.

"I just—just—well, your secretary didn't seem to be here, so—"

"Miss Stuart is often late for work. Confound it!"

"Is she? I mean—well, then, I—I—"

"And so you just took charge of the waiting applicants, with a little artistic bluffing." Jimmy Carr's grin was appreciative and broad.

"Yes, sir."

"Miss Friday, were you deliberately trying to show your source mind?"

"No, sir. I mean—"

"Blushing becomes you, did you know that?"

"Oh!"

"You remind me of my little sis, back home."

"Oh."

"You don't need character references, I can read your character. And you look healthy as an army mule."

"Oh!"

"Yes, sir; No, sir; Oh-oh-oh.' How you do chatter, Miss Friday!" Jimmy Carr laughed out loud. Then he resumed the inquisition. "What college graduated you, ma'am?"

That stymied Pat Friday. She hadn't been through any college. There was talking privately ward Suite 20, with its closed door. There was still more than half an hour. If only her luck held—

"Give me your names, in turn. I will list appointments starting at 9:15. Remember the advertisement. If you can't fully qualify, I advise you not to wait!"

That took care of that, told herself. She felt her hands trembling, but she looked at those girls severely. In a moment she was at the head of the line, writing.

She asked questions rapidly, and under each name made a few shorthand notes. In this procedure, about half the girls departed on their own. But plenty remained and more kept coming, and Pat saw that some held in their manner a defiance as keen as her own.

Then Pat's heart skipped a beat when the elevator door clicked open and out stepped a man in uniform. Intuition told her he was ahead of him to the Suite 20 door. Here, she faced the climax of her act.

"I have the names of all the applicants, sir," she said. "I assigned 10-minute appointments to each, with the promise of a return for any you thought advisable."

"Excellent," he replied, crisply, fitting a key to the door. "I had no idea there'd be so many! Tell only the first few to wait. Telephone Major Sellers that I have no verification of that wire from Washington. Call the British Embassy and tell them to—hey! You aren't Miss Stuart!"

Pat's heart stopped completely, or so it seemed. But she kept face, too.

"Weight?"

"I'm dieting. I think I can make—"

He wrinkled his nose at her, impishly grinning. "Ninety-five?"

"Oh, no! It's 99."

"Mmm! Fat lady!"

"I want to gain."

"Married?"

"Goodness no! I mean—no!"

"Plain 'No.'" He chuckled. "Any encumbrances?"

"No. I—I'm an orphan. Brother's in the Navy. We—"

"Typing? Shorthand? Dictaphone?"

"Yes, sir."

"Fifty a week, and it'll be hard work for a while, Miss Friday. I may take you right out to Elmira with us."

"Elmira?"

"Down state here, not far. Elmira, N.Y., is called the soaring capital of America. Nice town. But we're expanding fast, all over the nation. Don't mind travel?"

"No! I'd love it!"

"Good! Now I must warn you—"

Pat stopped him, with a motion of her hand. "Mr. Carr, about the other girls waiting outside—I can't play dirty!"

"Hmm!" He waited.

"I did sort of barge in ahead of them. I mean, that act of mine—taking their names and all—look, talk to all of them and then decide if you can hire me? You understand?"

He sat back in his swivel chair, studying her. His smile was gender now.—Less teasing. More respectful. Pat felt like a heel.

He might have said more, but the office door opened and a tall new girl came in. Instantly there was a touch of fragrance in the room, new fragrance. And a very air of superior quality!

The new one was like a thing from the fashion pages. Statuesque. Cool. Perfectly poised, and perfect to look at. As if Pat never even existed, she came around the desk to Jimmy Carr, leaned over and kissed him twice.

"Jim-mee! Darling!" It was sheer music, no less.

Jim Carr returned her kiss, but he was getting to his feet, too. In a moment he was saying, "Lorraine, this—uh, Miss Friday, may I present Miss Stuart." He was a trifle awkward and formal with it. "Miss Stuart is not only the office secretary here, she—uh—she and I are engaged. Loraine will be going to Elmira with us. I'm sure you two kids will be great friends!"

FIRST CLASH
CHAPTER III

NOW in this world of women, there is hair and hair. Her own curls, for instance, could be securely described as blond, or taffy. Pat Friday told herself. But —so could Loraine Stuart's. The difference was not in color or in fineness or in anything tangible; and yet to Pat it seemed very marked. Her own hair was forever prone to go berserk and look like a pencil drawing made by a baby. But Loraine's was perfection right off a magazine page.

And another thing. Loraine Stuart obviously didn't have to diet. Pat counted calories, at extra slices of buttered bread, gorged potatoes. But her all-time high ceded, in admiration that was worrisome but genuine.

This appraisal was made on the train going to Elmira, but it was a one-sided appraisal. Loraine had given no indication that Pat existed at all. Loraine merely sat beside Jimmy in the Pullman and engaged in what Pat understood to be sophisticated smart talk. Pat had to ride alone and backwards, in the seat behind them.

That arrangement, in a way, was Pat's own; she had felt a sense of responsibility as Jimmy Carr's new secretary, and so she had carefully seen to it that his luggage got on the train. The porter had noted that. He favored her with a warm smile and cordial but ever-so-respectful manner which Pat liked, but at the same time she felt a bit flattered.

Their eyes held, until he smiled again.

"You remember Crete," he went on. "The Germans took it with paratroops dropped out of gliders. Gliders, see? Airplanes without motors. Soaring is flying in those planes. Only—"

"Oh . . . . OH!"

He caught her heightened interest.

"Mmmm! Sounds exciting, eh? Okay, Miss Friday, it is! I'm here to tell you soaring is more fun than power flying. Easier, and safer, too. Now look—"

His boyish enthusiasm had him again. For five minutes he lectured Pat, and she was a fascinated pupil. He leaned close to her, he swayed back, describing things with his hands. It was a mere five minutes, but that was long enough for Pat to feel something brand-new welling within her. Moreover, it was a grand something. She hadn't time to understand it fully, but it was the most delightful, most exciting feeling she had ever known! Soaring! It had to do with aircraft, yes; but it had to do with her own consciousness, too! Jimmie Carr had sent her spirits soaring sky high.

"You're hired." He turned abruptly to his desk again, writing. "What's your age?"

"It's—22."

"Mmm. Height?"

"Five feet one. Almost two. Maybe I could—"

Cupid pulled the ripcord on romance when Captain Jimmy Carr helped Pat Friday adjust her parachute harness—but Loraine Stuart, the captain's fiancee, was determined to send Pat Friday's high-gliding dreams into a tailspin.

From basement to sky—in a few short days Pat Friday learned the thrill of soaring, to romantic adventure.

"Jim-mee! Darling!" It was sheer music, no less.

Jim Carr returned her kiss, but he was getting to his feet, too. In a moment he was saying, "Loraine, this—uh, Miss Friday, may I present Miss Stuart." He was a trifle awkward and formal with it. She Defied Storms in the Air . . But Not the Storm in Her Heart

SIX YOUNG WOMEN Wanted: 20 to 25; secretarial, learn soaring while you work, replace men needed in service; must be unencumbered, for travel; $80 a week to start; highest character references; physical examination; source minds only, college graduates. Apply 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, James Carr, Suite 20, Columbus Building.

Pat's mouth made a pretty red O. "For Pete's sake!" she breathed. Avidly she read the want ad again. She moistened her lips. The fat lady stepped on her and went unnoticed. Secretarial. Soaring—what the heck is soaring? Replace men . . . fifty dollars . . . physical . . . source . . . Source minds? Pat's brow furrowed.

At 103rd street she left the bus and half trotted to her room. Her mind was whirling. She stood before her bed, a cute somebody unconsciously snapping the elastic band of her new skirt that had cost three whole dollars. Friends would have known that something audacious was cooking in Pat Friday's brain.

In the Columbia Building at 8:15 next morning, Miss Patricia Friday, suddenly realized that, in the other want ad readers had been as smart as she. Get there early! Nearly 40 girls had that same idea! The line reached almost back to the elevator. Instinctively Pat paused to think.

On quick impulse she turned and went down again. In the corner drugstore she bought an ordinary stenographer's notebook and two pencils. She raced back to the elevator again. A snappy lad of 17 operated it.

"Look here, mister," Pat melted him. "It's worth a dime—no, a quarter—if you hold my hat and coat for an hour. Emergency, see?"

She needn't have offered money; her smile was enough. She mussed her taffy hair to make it just a trifle unbecoming, and stuck one pencil boldly in the front roll of taffy, donned her severest frown and approached the line of girls once more. There, she spoke loudly.

"You will have to be more quiet." She made it sound as harsh and authoritative as she could. "Mr. Carr would not approve of too much noise, I am sure."

Instantly she had their attention. She was walking primly toward Suite 20, with its closed door. There was still more than half an hour. If only her luck held—

"Certainly not!" she shot back, as military as he. "I am Miss Friday. Please, I-let's go in. After you."

She almost shoved him through the door. Then she closed it and put her back to it with the waiting girls outside. She looked up at him. He was a handsome man.

"I—I had to do it!" she spoke much less defiantly. "But anyway I don't see any Miss Stuart. And I can call your major and your—your—I can do anything you need done!" Her tremble had crept right into her voice.

Silence held them for a long moment. She felt him appraising her. Then she relaxed, just a little, when he showed a slow, interested smile.

"I only work here," he suggested.

"You are Mr. Carr?"

"Yes."

"I—I—you said 'source mind.' I looked it up. The dictionary. It didn't help, but I guessed maybe—well look—here's the list—those girls. Somebody had to—to help you!" She emphasized the same. "It was a silly want ad. Of course you'll get a million applicants with an ad like that. And you only need six."

Silence held them again. Could he now see her pulse jumping and hear the thunder in her heart?

Finally it was he who broke the spell, and he spoke not with military crispness but in a boyish western drawl.

"Maybe you have something. Maybe we had better sit down and talk, till I can see what the score is."

Again Jimmy Carr was smiling.

CHAPTER II
ENGAGED

PAT sat far on the edge of her chair, as if poised for flight. Her eyes were wide and beautiful, as always.

"I just—just—well, your secretary didn't seem to be here, so—"

"Miss Stuart is often late for work. Confound it!"

"Is she? I mean—well, then, I—I—"

"And so you just took charge of the waiting applicants, with a little artistic bluffing." Jimmy Carr's grin was appreciative and broad.

"Yes, sir."

"Miss Friday, were you deliberately trying to show your source mind?"

"No, sir. I mean—"

"Blushing becomes you, did you know that?"

"Oh!"

"You remind me of my little sis, back home."

"Oh."

"You don't need character references, I can read your character. And you look healthy as an army mule."

She Won Glory in a Glider . . But Could She Win Happiness?

"I can make any servant in the world like me, but—" She didn't finish the thought, sitting there rocking in the car. But she was thinking of Loraine and Jimmy. And remembering, too, that she had not gotten along with her last boss in town.

* * *

The little sense of gloom might have deepened if Jimmy Carr hadn't suddenly stood up, looking for her. Loraine stood, too, and they moved into the aisle.

"Club car," Jimmy said, beckoning. "Okay?"

"Yes sir."

Jimmy grinned. "Listen, Private Friday! Maybe I ought to make you salute me, too."

Pat looked quickly up at him, caught his infectious grin.

"I never know when you're teasing!" she murmured.

"What say?" The train roar had drowned her.

"I say, I never know when you're teasing."

"I never tease children."

"Oh."

"And you're just a little girl." He emphasized the little.

"Well, well you—" She decided to let him have it back. "At least my ears are little, too."

Jimmy pretended to scowl. "Listen, private! Want me to fire you? My ears are my sore points."

"They aren't points. They are landing fields."

"Wow!" They had come between two cars, and he held her arm. They had to shout over the wheel clacking. "Okay, I won't pick on you, then. You can't help being little, and I can't help having mule ears."

"They aren't really mulish."

"What!"

Now they were in another Pullman, with passengers looking up. Unconsciously, Pat shouted louder, "I say your ears aren't really as big as a mule's, and anyway, I like 'em!"

Fifteen or 20 people laughed, then, at the three young persons in the car, and it amounted to her first instructions.

"That yes-sir no-sir act," she began, and paused to spit out tobacco crumbs, her pretty lips puckered disdainfully, "it didn't go over at all with me. I thought I'd better remind you that Jimmy and I are engaged. Don't bother wasting your talents on me."

After Crack-Up

Fliers Five Days in Dinghy In Ice-Packed Arctic Area

MONCTON, N.B., March 15.—(CP)—Five days in a rubber dinghy in an ice-packed sound of the vast Arctic region—isolated from civilization with a self-made igloo as a home—then a 35-mile ride by dog team and rescue, was part of the story related by Captain Jimmy Wade of Maritime Central Airways on arrival by plane here last night.

Wade and his companion, Captain John G. Moe, navigator of the United States Army, were forced to land their twin-engined plane in the remote northland after encountering a severe storm.

The pair spent nearly three months in the Arctic after their attempt to rescue the injured crew of a United States Douglas bomber failed.

ON MERCY FLIGHT

The plane, equipped with skis as gasoline storage space built into it to make possible a 1,400-mile non-stop flight, left on its mercy flight from Charlottetown Dec. 16.

Wade started his story from the time the plane encountered bad weather and a forced landing was made on a sound the night of Dec. 23.

Forced down on slushy ice Captain Wade and his navigator had only time to launch their frail dinghy and take a little food and clothing before their plane sank beneath the thin ice.

Three hundred yards in front of them, said Captain Wade, was ice several feet thick with a perfect runway "where you could have landed any kind of a plane."

When the plane landed on the soft ice, Captain Wade and his companion were within sight of the shoreline, but it took them five days to reach safety.

After obtaining necessary clothing for the severe weather which they expected to endure the pair started to push their dinghy through the ice cakes.

"We didn't have much food, we brought along rations consisting of a can of biscuits and several cans of brown bread," he said.

The two fliers also brought with them in gas store which they used during the days and nights that followed.

"At times the ice became so thick we jumped out of the dinghy and hauled it to the next space of water. Sometimes the ice would break beneath our feet and we would jump into the dinghy again," he said.

Captain Wade then recalled how he had to pull his companion from the water with his teeth after he had gone under to his shoulders. "I couldn't grab him with my hands because of the heavy clothing we were wearing. Our clothes were wet but we didn't mind the cold the first couple of days. It was mixing and the temperature remained above zero."

RATION SCHEDULE

Asked how they survived on their small rations, Captain Wade said: "We adopted a schedule for every day adrift in that dinghy. It kept our minds occupied and I think that was the only thing to do under those circumstances. We planned a certain thing each day and carried it out. The hunger and cold seemed to leave us if we kept doing something."

With their rations almost exhausted Captain Wade and his comrade finally reached the shoreline.

"We dug a place in the snow and slept in one sleeping bag for the first night," Wade said. "When daylight came we built ourselves an igloo and started the gas stove which we brought along. It wasn't half bad."

During the third day natives appeared.

The 35-mile trip by dog team to the native village then began.

Captain Wade and his companion suffered little effects from their experiences.

Crime, Accidents Down at Calgary

CALGARY, March 15. — (CP) — Crime and traffic accidents are on the decrease at Calgary, according to the annual police report submitted Saturday at a meeting of the police commission. Actually, the number of cases dealt with by police were up by 680, but these were minor traffic offences on which fines were paid by the tag system.

Charges laid totalled 6,443, against 8,017 in 1941, a decrease of 1,574, but 2,254 cases were dealt with through the new tag system, so the increase in number was 680, but of a minor nature.

Charged with various offences were 5,800 men and 643 women, against 7,283 men and 734 women in previous year.

By-law offenders were the most prevalent, numbering 2,459, compared with 3,135 the previous year. Next came 999 cases under the Vehicles and Highway Traffic Act, compared with 1,167 in 1941.

Trade Minister Pays Tribute to Grain Official

OTTAWA, March 15.—(CP)—Trade Minister MacKinnon last night paid the following tribute to W. Charles Folliott, commissioner of the Canadian Wheat Board since 1938, who died in hospital at Winnipeg Saturday.

"Mr. Folliott's early and untimely death is a very great shock to me. His colleagues of the Canadian Wheat Board have always frankly stated that they leaned heavily on his judgment and wide experience, which he had unselfishly placed at the service of the trade department as a member of the Canadian Wheat Board."

According to the broadcast, "formerly separated" Greek and Yugoslav partisan detachments recently formed a junction on the Greek-Yugoslav border under the command of a Greek officer.

The Terrible Eye

By EDWIN RUTT

CHAPTER XX

"JONAH," said Hildy Channing sharply, "you're the head man of all the goons. Why didn't you grab the opportunity to tell father about the Terrible Eye?"

"Well," Jonah's voice was listless, "it isn't necessary to break the Channing Camera Empire now. You're all fixed."

"I know. But what about your nuisance value? Your $50 a week?"

"I'm waiving it," said Jonah somberly. "The Terrible Eye is pure dynamite, as you said it was. So you know what I'm going to do? I'm going to have Mahoney dig a deep pit. Then I'll put the machines in the pit, together with a record of my — my investigations."

Hildy considered. "I think you're right, Jonah. The Terrible Eye is way too dangerous. But what are you going to do next?"

"Hurry up this man's Navy," Jonah said decisively. "Then, if the Foreign Legion's still operating, I'll ask for a transfer to it. That's where guys go to forget, isn't it?"

"But what do you want to forget? You . . ." Very suddenly she stopped. Her eyes were on Jonah's wristwatch. "Oh, my Lord!"

"Jonah Logan, do you see the time? It's 12:30! Chet, poor darling, will have been waiting for me a whole half hour. Oh, this is terrible! In all the excitement, getting married just slipped my mind. Come on, Jonah! Hurry!"

She dashed from the Taj Mahal, Jonah at her heels. Suddenly she stooped running, and stared.

A moon, slightly on the gibbous side, was patrolling the sky. It poured silvery wash over the Channing preserves. And, from the shadows into a patch of light, there now emerged a threesome.

Stalking at the head of it, in flying regalia, was Mr. Chester Saxon. Just behind him, a proprietary hand on Mr. Saxon's arm, marched a gentleman in uniform, obviously a night watchman. Two paces to the rear came an individual fantastically garbed in a nightshirt. The nightshirted person carried a pitchfork. Jonah recognized him as one of the stablemen.

"Would that be you, Miss Hildy?" called the night watchman, across 30 feet of open water.

"Griffiths!" Hildy practically screamed. "What on earth are you doing?"

"Caught him climbin' over the wall," Griffiths explained, not without smugness. "And collared him."

"Let him go this minute. He's—he's a friend of mine."

Mr. Saxon did not wait to be freed. He wrenched free. Livid was the word for Saxon.

"Friend of yours," he roared. "Well, you've got a fine way of treating your friends. I suppose you thought it was a swell joke to put those flares in a potato field a mile away from here. I suppose you think it's a swell joke that I busted my landing - gear and damn near busted my neck. Ha-ha! I'm laughing too. Well, let me tell you something. I wouldn't marry into a screwball family like this if I had to stay single the rest of my life."

And Chester Saxon turned on a raging heel, squared raging shoulders and marched raging into the darkness.

. . . .

Dead silence fell. Jonah Logan, transported, hoped that his heart was not being conspicuous. The heart was beating out a blend of the "Jersey Bounce" and "Alexander's Ragtime Band."

Then Hildy uttered a choking sound, half-sob, half-laugh.

"Simonby," Hildy said, addressing the stableman, "you're killing me. You look like Satan ready for bed."

The stableman snapped to. For the first time, he appeared to become conscious of his dishabille. Jerking the pitchfork from the ground, he faded. With him faded the night watchman.

But they did not fade alone. One who, at a listening post in the darkness, had been privy to the scene, faded likewise. And as he went, he indulged in a discreet guffaw.

"Call me Maloney, will he?" muttered Mahoney, with supreme satisfaction. Nobody gets away with that."

Jonah Logan spoke gently. "I'm sorry, Hildy. Indirectly, I'm responsible. I'll deal — er — summarily with Mahoney. I can't understand what got into him."

"Forget it, Jonah," Hildy said, face still averted. "Because if could be that Mahoney did me a favor."

Mr. Logan was quite sure of it. But, sapiently, he forbore to say so.

For a moment Hildy was silent. Then: "I've been thinking, Jonah, but it's no use. I simply can't figure out how I came to forget completely to go and get married. Unless . . ." She checked herself. "Yes?" said Jonah encouragingly.

Hildy drew a long breath. "Unless it was because I—I actually wasn't in love with him."

"Maybe that's how it was," Jonah said.

At that point a long mournful whistle sounded. It was a late local train, New York bound. By this train sat Miss Meath, the former Gertrude Swan. Miss Meath looked like a cat who has been given carte blanche in a creamery. Miss Meath was thinking it rather strange that Joe the Cracker hadn't shown up at the rendezvous on the stroke of midnight. But, presently, she dismissed the matter from her mind. It wasn't important. Because, in the suitcase at her feet, there reposed a diamond tiara worth 40,000 smackers. At least, that is what Miss Meath thought.

The whistle howled again and the night wind wafted the din to Wildover.

"I like train whistles," Jonah said, almost carelessly. "They remind me of going places and doing things. You know, things you get a kick out of. Like . . . well, honeymoon and stuff."

"Oh, honeymoons," said Hildy. "But, of course, Jonah, you've no time for honeymoons. You're joining the Navy and then the Foreign Legion and — and . . . oh, skip it!"

Jonah put an end to shiltyshally. He put a tentative arm around Hildy Channing.

"Sure, I'm joining the Navy," he said. "But not tonight. Tomorrow I've got a date with your paternal ancestor. To show cause why I followed him and made movies. Well, when he's all through talking, Logan will speak. And Logan will demand to know what objectives, if any, he has to his daughter marrying an itinerant photographer."

"Oh, Jonah!" Hildy turned her face to him swiftly. It was okay for a lobsided moon to leer at her now. "What possible objection could he have? He said in plain English that he didn't care if I married the iceman."

Jonah Logan's arm around her forsook tentativeness. In fact, it became downright possessive.

"Any ice today, lady?" said Jonah Logan.

CURIOUS WORLD

Anti-German Activities in Denmark Grow

An airgraph communication giving a picture of rebellious conditions within German-occupied Denmark despite the posting by the Nazis of 15,000 anti-sabotage guards throughout the country, has been received in Edmonton by officials of the Danish aircraft fund from the Danish council of information office in London.

The communication said that "opposition to the Germans and present conditions in Denmark is assuming active shape not only among so-called Communists but among all classes of people."

PATRIOTS SEIZED

The airgraph told of stricter regulations against sabotage and the seizing of patriots and anti-Nazi papers. It said the well-known surgeon Professor Chiewitz city archivist Fleming Dahl and Miss Inger Merete Nordentoft, chairman of the women teachers association in Copenhagen are among those taken into custody.

"Other people of standing are known simply to have disappeared."

The communication went on to say that there were "indications the Germans are trying to isolate King Christian and the Royal house in order to minimize the importance of the King as a vital factor in political and national life in Denmark. . . .

"The whole affair arising out of King Christian's curt thank you telegram in reply to Hitler's flowery birthday telegram has not yet been cleared up, and while the Germans are ignoring the King and Crown Prince Regent, full official contact has been established with Prime Minister Scavenius, who is known for his obliging attitude towards the Germans. . . ."

SEE DICTATORSHIP

Danes were now asking whether Scavenius "would go so far as to agree to set aside the King, which would, in effect, give Scavenius himself a position akin to that of a dictator," the airgraph said.

It referred to the German demand that the elections for the upper and lower houses of the Rigsdag (Danish parliament) due before April, not take place and said this "constitutes another encroachment on Danish democracy."

The communication noted too that German fuel deliveries are increasingly lacking; the German debt to Denmark for exports to the Reich totals 2,500,000 kroner and many Danish industrial enterprises have been forced to close down.

OTHER REGULATIONS

Other Nazis regulations have forced the cutting of radio programs. Lighting in shops and restaurants has been reduced 40 per cent; all restaurants must close at 11 o'clock instead of midnight and local traffic must cease at 10 p.m.

"Stocks of raw materials and food have reached bedrock," the airgraph said, "and though the Danes are still better off than other German-occupied countries, the health of the people is beginning to be seriously affected."

It said the bombing of Burmeister and Wain was "no doubt" welcomed by the workers of those towns, which have "been attacked by the Germans as a hotbed of sabotage and anti-Nazi propaganda." It was known in London that a 10,000 ton Norwegian tanker scheduled to be delived in June, 1940, was still in the stocks after several "mishaps".

The Eiffel Tower, in Paris, was completed in 1889.

French Sailors Quit Ships to Join De Gaulle

While the Richelieu, Le Fantasque and other French warships have been undergoing repairs in American ports, some men of their crews have been deserting to join the de Gaullist forces. Shown above in Fighting French headquarters in Halifax, Nova Scotia, are French seamen who went there after leaving their ships and who now are awaiting transportation to England.

Six Members Edmonton Bar Now 'Wear Silk'

With traditional ceremony six members of the Edmonton Bar were called to the inner bar by Chief Justice Hon. Horace Harvey in Alberta's appeal court Monday.

Those taking silk were: G. W. Baldwin, K.C. Ald. A. Bisset, K.C. Carl E. Clement, K.C., J. K. Macdonald, K.C., Ronald Martland, K.C. and Paul E. Poirier, K.C.

Chief Justice Harvey congratulated the newly created Kings Counsellors, and remarked when he called Mr. Macdonald to the bar that he "had called him to service with the province of Alberta when I was deputy attorney-general." The Chief Justice said "This is a honor long deferred, and I am glad that it has been bestowed at last."

Ald. Bisset recalled that he had been admitted to the bar by the chief justice, and on that occasion had been presented by Mr. Justice Frank Ford, who was on the bench at Monday's ceremony.

In admitting Ronald Martland Chief Justice Harvey commented, "your appointment has not been so long delayed, and it certainly is well deserved."

Getting Around

duce his ticket. A "mob" of Short Snorters at the airport joined in the fun.

The Short Snorters was started a few years ago by a U.S. pilot named Joe Barrows, who was flying between the U.S. and Alaska.

Now it is argued that a flight cross the ocean is not a necessary qualification for membership in the Short Snorters Club. The famed radio comedian. Fred Allen had this out with foxy Oscar Levant on the "Information Please" program. Allen produced his Short Snorter dollar membership ticket, much to the astonishment of Levant. Allen has never flown the ocean in an airplane.

Both Wendell Willkie and President Roosevelt are non-pilot members of the club.

It is not generally known that many of the Canadian Pacific Air Lines pilots, working out of Edmonton, are members of the Short Snorters Club.

* * *

Membership is exceedingly widespread since the present war. Thousands of R.A.F. and United States Air Force pilots are members. It is calculated that the number of quadruple-signed dollar bills held by members would constitute a fortune of no mean size. The dollars paid in forfeit when Short Snorters have failed to produce their tickets would also run into the thousands.

* * *

But the air is rapidly becoming the new highway of travel for the peoples of the world and novelty of membership in the Short Snorters club will soon pass away.

The party includes Flt. Lt. R. L. Penfield, Sgt. W. Thompson and Cpl. M. Pike of the woman's division.

Dr. T. Frank Cairns Dies at 64 Years

Well known in the city as a veterinarian and a sports enthusiast, Dr. T. Frank Cairns, 10721 104 street, died in hospital Saturday. He was 64 years old. He had been a resident of Edmonton for the last 32 years.

Dr. Cairns was a native of Forest, Ont., and was graduated from the Ontario Veterinary College, Toronto, in 1906. He came west in 1910 to Dayaland, Alta., and one year later moved to this city. He was associated in his practice for several years with Dr. B. I. Love and later went into partnership with Dr. A. J. Malmas.

He was a past-president of the Alberta Veterinary Association. He was also a charter members of the Edmonton Kiwanis Club, and a member of Patricia Lodge, A.F. & A.M. and the Edmonton Exhibition Association.

He is survived by his wife and two daughters, Mrs. Arthur Greenwood, of Holden, and Mrs. John A. West, Vancouver.

Elliott joined as an AW2. They are now tied for honors in the family race for promotion.

Contributions To Red Cross At $62,708.31

Opening day of the last week in the Canadian Red Cross Society's annual drive for funds found Edmonton's total at $62,708.31. Reports from country points showed the total to be $18,821.51 making a total for the entire Northern Alberta division of $81,529.82.

Officials again stress the fact that a large proportion of the money collected during the present drive will go towards parcels for the Canadian soldiers, sailors and airmen who are prisoners of war in the hands of the Germans, Italians or Japanese. Sending of these parcels can only be done by the Red Cross.

The appreciation with which these parcels are received by the boys is well demonstrated in letters received at the society's headquarters, one extract reading "Well looked after and receive a Canadian Prisoner parcel every fortnight with great joy. Can't say it well you! Butter, tea, sugar, chocolate and meat tins. What fun!"

Woman Is Injured In 30-Foot Jump

Bleeding about the face after allegedly jumping from the third floor of the Jasper Rooms, 9667 101 avenue, Myrtle Charlton, 10613 92 avenue, was found by city police about 5 a.m. Sunday, questioned, and returned to the scene, before she was taken to Royal Alexandra hospital for medical treatment and examination.

Mrs. Charlton told police that she had attended a dance, with her sister-in-law. As they left the hall they were asked by a man named Steve Helsey to have some lunch. They accepted. As they passed the Jasper Rooms, where Helsey had a room, he told the women he had to get something out of his room, and asked them to come up.

Mrs. Charlton said that she had entered the man's room while her sister-in-law remained in the hall, talking to a friend of her companion.

When the couple in the hall heard a scream and a crash they said they tried the door of the room and found it locked. Running into another room and opening the window, they saw Mrs. Charlton on the street about 30 feet below.

At the Royal Alexandra hospital, where Mrs. Charlton was taken, it was found she suffered from a cut on the forehead above the left eye, a fractured arm, and injuries on the left side of the chest.

Helsey was slated to have left the room immediately, but was found later in another room. He was placed under arrest, charged with assault. He works as a steam fitter.

Hesley charged with assault in Magistrate A. I. Miller's court Monday morning, entered a plea of not guilty. He told the court he had not touched the woman, but that she had jumped through the window. The case was adjourned to March 25.

Liquor Vendors At Coast Open One Hour Daily

VICTORIA, March 15 — (CP) — Liquor stores in several British Columbia cities, including Vancouver and Victoria, will be open only one hour daily starting today, Liquor Commissioner W. F. Kennedy announced Saturday.

Mr. Kennedy said the decision was reached only after exhaustive study of the whole problem. Too many people wanting liquor and not enough liquor to go around.

Hours will be reduced from eight to one each day in liquor stores in Vancouver, Victoria, North Vancouver, New Westminster, Victoria, Esquimalt and Sidney.

Mr. Kennedy said the new schedule will enable people to know exactly when the stores will be open. The one hour open varies each day.

One of Mark Twain's favorite dishes was saucisenkartoffelbiersauerkrautkrannsuurt, a variety of German sausage.

—a heartfelt tribute to the Canadian Red Cross from Cpl. G. H. Flint, of Toronto—now in a German prisoner-of-war camp.

These are some of Corporal Flint's own words:

"...The men in the ward are from Norway, France, Greece, Crete, and now from Kappe—the finest men in the British Army.....I do understand now that theres only one organization as far as we're concerned—the Red Cross. I will never underestimate the work they do. They keep us alive."

Midshipman Greg Cocks, Ontario, Ont., recently a prisoner in French Algeria, writes:

"If it hadn't been for the food from the Red Cross, I'm sure half of us would have died."

And from Pte. Ronald Pelling, captured at Dieppe, in a letter to his mother, of Havelock Street, Toronto:

"We don't work hard and we get well fed through the Red Cross."

THE CANADIAN RED CROSS MUST HAVE $10,000,000 TO CARRY OUT ITS MERCY PROGRAM IN 1943.
